Teamster Is Arrested in Area Killing

By LYNN MULVANEY

Freeman Staff
KINGSTON — A 1961 Kerhonkson kidnap-murder case cracked today with the arrest of Mafia kingpin Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, number one power in the New Jersey Teamsters Union, and three other men.

Provenzano, 59, has been prominently linked to the disappearance of former Teamster President James Hoffa last July.

The body of Anthony Castellito, former secretary-treasurer of Teamster Local 560, for whom a grave had been dug on his own Cherrytown Road property, has never been found. He was allegedly struck on the head with a blunt object and strangled with a cord, June 6, 1961 at his Kerhonkson summer home.

The murder is believed to have resulted from a power struggle within the union.

Indicted today with Provenzano by both Ulster County Grand Jury and Manhattan Federal Grand Jury were: Salvatore Briguglio, 46, Washington Township, N. J., a business agent for Local 560; Harold Konigsberg, 49, no address, and George Vangelakos, 47, Jersey City, N. J. an employee of Korvette Trucking, Bayonne.

The federal indictment for kidnapping was announced in New York City this morning by William I. Aronwald, head of the Justice Department's Joint Strike Force Against Organized Crime.

Here in Kingston Chief Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh, acting for District Attorney Francis Vogt, who was in the city with Aronwald, said the indictments charge the defendants with conspiring to kidnap Castellito for the purpose of murdering him.

Kavanagh said the defendants, together with unindicted co-conspirators Salvatore Sinno and the late Edward Skowron, allegedly agreed to lure Castellito from New Jersey to his Kerhonkson home in Ulster County where he would be murdered.

The indictments allege that in order to carry out the killing, Sinno approached Castellito and asked him to help in hiding a fugitive. Castellito agreed to let the "lamster" hide out at his Kerhonkson home.

The indictments charge that on June 6, 1961, Sinno and Skowron accompanied Castellito from the Lodi, N. J. area to Castellito's home in Kerhonkson, where Castellito was murdered by defendants Briguglio, Konigsberg, Skowron and Sinno.

While Castellito was being strangled, Vangelakos allegedly was digging a grave for the body in the vicinity of the Kerhonkson home. This part of the plan was aborted and the body taken back to

Provenzano in Florida

New Jersey for burial, according to the charges.

Provenzano is alleged to have paid Konigsberg $15,000 for his participation in the murder and agreed to appoint Briguglio as business agent for Local 560 for his participation, according to Senior Investigator James A. Fitzgerald of the New York State Police.

Fitzgerald spoke in behalf of Troop F Captain K. D. Odell, who was present with Vogt and Aronwald at a press conference held simultaneously with one here.

Provenzano was in Florida at the time of the murder, according to Fitzgerald.

He is also alleged to have been in Florida at the time of Hoffa's disappearance.

New York State Police were first alerted to Castellito's disappearance in 1961 by New Jersey Police, who suspected foul play.

BCI Investigator Michael Lisman and State Police initiated the investigation and were later joined by the Justice Department's Joint Task Force Against Organized Crime.

Recent investigations brought enough admissible evidence to light to sustain an indictment.

Vogt

Fitzgerald said Konigsberg is now serving a eight to 30-year sentence in Clinton Correctional Facility at Dannemora.

He was convicted of conspiracy and extortion in 1967.

The defendants are to be arraigned on the federal charges July 1 at United State Courthouse, Foley Square and later the same day at Ulster County Court House on the state charges. If convicted on either the state or federal indictments, they could receive sentences of life imprisonment.

At the time of Hoffa's disappearance from outside a Detroit, Mich., restaurant last summer, the former Teamster president was scheduled to meet with reputed Detroit Mafia king Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone.

Giacalone, along with Provenzano and Detroit labor consultant Leonard Schultz, failed to show up for the luncheon meeting with Hoffa the day he disappeared.

In 1953, Provenzano was found guilty by a federal court of extorting more than $17,000 from a trucking company official to insure labor peace.

At that time Provenzano faced up to 10 years in prison, the verdict reportedly caught the nattily-dressed labor leader by surprise.

He had predicted he would be acquitted of the charges that he extorted funds from Walter A. Dorn, president of a Rensselaer, N. Y. trucking firm.

State Will Seek $1.7 County Taxes Overdue from Railways

ALBANY — If Penn Central Railroad pays back the $1,006,280 it owes Ulster County in back taxes since 1970 the county's budget shortfall of $1.7 million would be a lot shorter.

State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz said Monday he will try to recover the funds for Ulster and other communities in the state which the railroad owes $123.8 million in back taxes.

With the railroad's failure to pay the taxes causing "severe hardship," on the communities, Lefkowitz decided to petition the U. S. District Court in Philadelphia today for enforced payment of the back taxes.

Noting that ConRail had taken over several railroad systems in the state April 1, the attorney general suggested there is no longer any reason for deferring tax payments.

Last September, federal bankruptcy courts ruled that bankrupt railroads do not have to pay the back taxes they owe municipalities.

Lehigh Valley and Erie Lackawanna Railroads have also gone into reorganization and have stopped paying taxes, Lefkowitz said.

He did not say how much they owed local governments but said he was contemplating a similar action against them.

Penn Central now owes Ulster County six annual payments totaling $1,006,280.64 plus 10 per cent interest and an additional five per cent penalty for non-collection.

City of Kingston is also owed about $215,000 by Penn Central between 1970 and 1975.

"They've got us over a barrel," City Treasurer Francis H. Law said today, "because municipalities cannot confiscate railroad property."

Although it has received no taxes from the railroad since 1969, Ulster County set up a reserve fund to pay the various towns of the county and the school districts the amount Penn Central owed them. According to state law, the counties must make good the losses that the towns and school districts suffer because of railroad tax default. School districts and local municipalities are prohibited from writing railroad taxes off their books.

Law also prohibits tax sales where railroad property is concerned. County Treasurer Fred H. DuBois said Ulster County got a stay order several years ago prohibiting such a tax sale.

Lefkowitz's concern may also be based on the fact that a number of other counties reportedly have not set up reserves and are having to raise funds they previously counted on receiving.

Ulster County has paid the railroad taxes to the towns, as little as $294 to Woodstock and as much as $12,725 to Esopus, depending upon the amount of railroad property in each town.

DuBois would like to see Lefkowitz make a good try at securing the funds through the federal court but isn't counting the dollars until he has them.

It was April 1 that seven bankrupt railroads, including the giant Penn Central, faded into history, absorbed by a government planned corporation charged with creating one profitable system.

At that time, hundreds of freight trains moving throughout the east and midwest on bankrupt lines became ConRail freights, no longer the property of Penn Central, Erie Lackawanna, Jersey Central, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Lehigh & Hudson River or Ann Arbor, whose names now exist only in court suits and history books.

ConRail is not to be confused with Amtrak—a government-subsidized company responsible for intercity passenger service.

ConRail is a for-profit company, primarily a freight railroad. It is obligated to pay back the $21 billion it borrowed from the government. It hopes to be in the black by 1980.

Food Bills Were Up Last Week

KINGSTON — The cost of feeding a family of four in Kingston rose 4.7 per cent last week to $65.57, according to figures released Wednesday by the Ulster County Consumer Information Service.

The comparable figure for the 38-item market basket of foods purchased by a typical moderate-income family for the week ending June 11 was $62.91. The figure for the week ending June 4 was $65.59.

Society Offers $200 For Return of Stone

NEW PALTZ — A $200 reward has been offered by the Huguenot Historical Society of New Paltz to anyone with information that would lead to the return of a Revolutionary era lintel stone removed last week from Deyo House on Huguenot Street.

The stone, into which were cut the date 1786 and the initials of the builder, was removed from the cement support of the porte-cochere of Deyo House on the night of June 17. The lintel (threshold) stone was acquired from the Nathan Deyo Tavern site (the historic old Black Horse Inn), near Catskill, where it had served as the horizontal crosspiece over an entranceway.

Kenneth E. Hasbrouck, who heads the local historical society, said the lintel is of intrinsic value to those involved in the preservation of Huguenot Street, and especially important to the Deyo site in this Bicentennial year.

He said the stone weighed 75 pounds and would have been difficult for one person carry away easily. He also described it as about two-and-one-half feet long and nine inches wide.

He asked anyone with information about the stone's whereabouts to contact him at home in New Paltz or at the Society's headquarters. New Paltz police may also be contacted.

House for PO Closing Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House wants to delay for a year the Postal Service's plan to close small post offices across the country.

Two small post offices in Ulster County, those in West Camp and Shady, could be affected if the Postal Service goes through with its plan to close some smaller post offices.

By a 399-14 vote Tuesday, the House adopted and sent to the Senate a resolution urging the Postal Service to suspend any closings unless "a clear and compelling reason" is shown. It urged the Postal Service to explore other cost-cutting remedies.

A bill putting such a moratorium into law has passed the House but has not been acted upon by the Senate. It would halt the closings until next Feb. 15.

Mrs. Ford Led Prayer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Maurice Sage, president of Jewish National Fund, collapsed on stage Tuesday night as he was about to present a Bible to Betty Ford at a Bicentennial dinner in the New York Hilton Hotel. He died shortly afterwards.

Doctors in the audience rushed to the dais to give assistance to Sage, 58. The First Lady calmly took over the microphone and led the audience in prayer.

"We must all pray in our way," she said as Sage was administered oxygen supplied by the hotel, at about 10 p.m. "It is up to God what will happen, we should all have faith."

"It is rather ironic," said one witness who asked not to be identified, "that in the moment of Sage's collapse everyone was paralyzed, and although many of the country's most prominent rabbis were present it was Betty Ford who calmly led the group in a touching prayer."

"Everyone rose and applauded when she concluded," she said, "but Betty responded by saying that it was not appropriate. She then said we shouldn't go on with any more of the program and the guests gradually left."

Dutchess Sheriff Gets 30 Days to Comply

NEW YORK — A Federal judge has ruled that Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence Quinlan's long-standing defiance of an order to improve living conditions at the county jail amounts to "willful contempt" of court.

U.S. District Court Judge Henry Werker described Quinlan's administration of the Poughkeepsie jail as "shocking" and ordered him to pay the legal expenses of the inmates who filed a complaint against him in 1973. In addition, Werker gave Quinlan 30 days to obey the 29-month-old order.

Carey Beats Abortion Veto Deadline

ALBANY — Gov. Hugh Carey, acting just minutes before a technical deadline, Tuesday night vetoed a bill that would have required parental consent before an abortion could be performed on a woman under 18.

Noting in his veto message that "no one need explain to me the significance of the family structure or the love and responsibility of a parent for a child," the governor, who has 12 children, said the bill was "illusory" and presented a "significant constitutional question."

Little Sympathy Aired on Welfare Reform

ALBANY — Despite adding the "new dimension" of New York Mayor Abraham Beame's support to their campaign for welfare reform, upstate county executives say they have gotten little more than sympathy from state legislators.

Truck-Car Crash Injures Woman, 4 Children

KINGSTON—A Forest Hills woman and her son were in critical condition and three other children hospitalized yesterday after in the aftermath of a flaming crash on the New York State Thruway in Kingston.

Thruway State Police said Arlene Flood, 35, 7319 Kessel St., Forest Hills, was northbound on the thruway when she missed the Kingston exit and began backing up in the driving lane.

A tractor trailer truck driven by Dennis Messier, 19, St. Louis, Richlieu, Quebec struck the rear of the car on the left side. The truck tore off the roof of the car and pushed it off the right shoulder. The wheels of the truck were knocked out from under the front end and the truck continued north, coming to rest against the guard rail on the center strip, police said. The collision ripped off one of the truck's fuel tanks, which caught fire. The trunk of the automobile also caught fire.

Wreckage of the car, beside the Thruway

According to an eyewitness, people at the scene did an "incredible job" of rescuing the trapped victims from the fiery car. They rushed in with fire extinguishers, ignoring imminent danger of explosion in the gas tank. "You could see the fire dancing on a gas tank," the witness said, "but it did not stop the rescuers' efforts."

Mrs. Flood and her son Daniel, 11, were trapped in the left side of the car. Police and bystanders got them out with crowbars.

Mrs. Flood and her children, Daniel, Mary Claire, 13, Adam, 15, Matthew, 7, and their aunt, Barbara Anderson of New York City, were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance. Mrs. Flood and Daniel were transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie where they are in critical condition in the intensive care unit. The other children are reported in satisfactory condition at Benedictine. Ms. Anderson was not seriously injured, but remained at the hospital overnight to be with the children.

Home Destroyed by Fire

ACCORD—Firefighters from Accord, Kerhonkson, and Allgerville were called to the scene of a fire which totally destroyed a house on Upper Granite Road in Accord last night. Accord Fire Chief Lowell Baker said the 40 fire fighters with six pieces of apparatus brought the blaze under control within a half an hour. Chief Lowell said the house was almost completely destroyed when fire fighters arrived. No one was seriously injured in the fire whose origin is undetermined and is under investigation by the Ellenville State Police.

Rosendale Trailer Blaze

Another fire in Rosendale brought fire fighters from Rosendale, Bloomington, Tillson, and Rifton to the scene on West Street in Rosendale. President of the Rosendale Fire Company Raymond Ritter said the fire took place in a trailer with additions on it. Ritter said that about 75 fire fighters were there with six pieces of apparatus and had the blaze out within 45 minutes. The cause of this fire is also undetermined and is under investigation by the Hurley State Police.

Post Office Burglary

Ellenville State Police report a burglary at the Napanoch Post Office Monday night. Entry was evidently gained through a window. The burglars apparently tried to break into the safe, police said, by removing some bolts on the hinges, but the bolts were only dust covers. According to police a juvenile was arrested yesterday in connection with the incident.

Money Changer Stolen

A dollar bill changer was reported stolen from the Nevele Hotel and Country Club in Ellenville Tuesday morning. Ellenville State Police said the machine contained about $900 in currency and change and was itself worth about $1,000.

Ulster Accident

The Ulster County Sheriff's Department reports an accident in the Town of Ulster involving a pedestrian and an automobile. Police say that a vehicle driven by Loretta Accanzo of East Kingston was reportedly forced off the road by an unknown vehicle striking John Eckman, 53, of Monticello. Eckman was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance and treated for lacerations, abrasions, and contusions of his right arm and back.

CB Radio Theft

The Sheriff's Department also reports the theft of a citizens' band radio set from a parked car in the Town of Ulster. Police say Stephen Nagy of Ulster reported the theft occurred during the early morning hours. According to police someone broke the rear window of the car and stole a Cobra model 29, 23-channel set and an antenna. Sheriff Thomas Mayone says the traffic in stolen CB sets has reached "epidemic proportion" and recommends that purchasers of the sets should immediately mark them with a metal etching pencil, engraving their name, address, and social security number on both the inside and the outside of the set.

Freeport Man Arrested

New Paltz Police report the arrest of a Freeport man who allegedly backed into a parked motorcycle in New Paltz early Wednesday morning. Matt Mandel, 21, of Freeport reportedly left the scene of the accident and kicked an officer during his arrest. Mandel was taken before Town Justice Rexford Schneider and charged with backing unsafely, failure to use headlights, failure to keep to the right, driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident, and harassment. He was remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $250 bail.

Utility Hearings Off-Base

OSWEGO, N.Y. (UPI) — An environmental group will not be allowed to intervene in hearings on an application by four upstate utilities to build a nuclear power plant in the Cayuga County town of Sterling.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission rejected the request Tuesday.

The "Citizens Concerned About Sterling," a group opposing the proposal to build the 1,150-megawatt plant on the Lake Ontario shore about eight miles from here, had submitted a petition carrying about 500 names, they said.

The Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation, along with Orange and Rockland Utilities Inc., Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., and Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., have applied for permission to build the facility, estimated to cost $1.135 billion.

The utilities, which would share the costs and output of the plant, hope to have the facility in operation on the 2,800-acre site by 1982. The NRC set July 20 for a public hearing in Oswego.

Democrats Head Off Challenge

NEW YORK (UPI) — An agreement has been reached to add 15 women and young persons to the New York state at-large delegation to the Democratic National Convention, thus heading off a credentials challenge.

Shortly after the at-large delegates were selected by the state committee, a group headed by Barbara Fife, state committeewoman from the 67th Assembly District, announced it would challenge the slate on grounds it did not adequately represent young persons and women.

Most of those chosen in April were party regulars, the majority of whom were men over the age of 30.

A statement from the state Democratic committee Tuesday said several at-large delegates selected by the state committee April 23 have agreed to expand the delegation with 10 women and three men under the age of 30 and two women over 30, each of whom will have a half vote.

Nadjari Charge Put Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Special state investigator Jacob Grumet says he has found no evidence to support special state prosecutor Maurice H. Nadjari's charge that Gov. Hugh Carey's attempt to fire Nadjari in December was politically motivated.

Grumet, a retired judge appointed by Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz at Carey's request to investigate Nadjari's allegation, presented a 101-page report with two lengthy appendices Tuesday. "There is no evidence to support the charge that the governor's decision on Dec. 4, 1975, to replace Mr. Nadjari was the result of any improper influences," Grumet said.

"I also find that there is no evidence to support the allegation by Mr. Nadjari that an investigation pending in his office triggered his proposed dismissal."

A spokesman for Nadjari said he would have no comment until Nadjari has completed a thorough study of the report. Carey said in a statement he was pleased by the report, and added that he and Lefkowitz are discussing Nadjari's future.

Feeder Bus Routes Loom for County

KINGSTON — Nothing so grandiose as an IRT subway system is involved—but mass transportation of another sort could be available in Ulster County within a year. Confidence is riding high currently on all governmental levels that the county's application for funding for a proposed Rural Highway Public Transportation Demonstration Program will be approved in Washington in less than a month.

If the project is approved, eight newly-proposed feeder bus loops would begin hooking up with existing services offered by local, private carriers. Running on specific days the week, the loops have been proposed as follows:

New Paltz-Rosendale; Gardiner-New Paltz; West Camp West Saugerties; Rochester-Olive-Marbletown; Woodstock-Zena Sawkill; Ellenville-Avenue Greenfield Park-Route 52; Ellenville-Route 52 South-Hansburg Road-Cragmoor Road-South Gully Road; and West

Shokan-West Hurley.

Vehicles proposed for use in the project would include four 15-passenger vans (one equipped with a wheel-chair lift), and one 23-passenger mini-bus.

Additionally, dial-a-bus service would be provided for the entire county. The van with the wheel-chair lift would be available for such service at all times with each of the other vehicles at least one day a week in each area for additional dial-a-bus needs. The schedules have been coordinated so as to allow a time lag between feeder runs for other demand-response calls.

While the county's buses cannot run on routes already franchised, they will provide a needed service by picking up passengers in outlying areas to meet with Arrow, Eagle, Trailways and other bus lines.

In addition to providing transportation for workers to their jobs, and service for shoppers, provisions have been made for the specialized needs of the elderly and handicapped. Bus runs will begin early enough in the day to service the Association for Retarded Children and Gateway Industries, and will continue later as the key to include the Senior Citizens Program, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Social Services and others.

The application for $339,111 in federal funding for a two-year period resulted from an in-depth study by the county's Intergovernmental Coordination Office.

If the Public Demonstration Transportation Program is approved, coordinator Robert C. "Josh" Randall and research assistant Linda Uhlfelder said the mass rural transportation system would be administered and coordinated by their office.

Summer Job Plan In Need of Money

STONE RIDGE — A program to put high school and college students to work for the summer painting and repairing houses has attracted a lot of community interest but not much money.

"Quite a few people have called," said Richard Sanders, founder of the Ulster County Student Fund Society. "At least a couple hundred parents have called to ask for applications for their children."

"There's no problem finding jobs for these students. Lots of houses need painting, maintenance, or winterizing," he said.

The students would concentrate their efforts on homes owned by the elderly, many of whom cannot afford the cost of home improvements and don't have the physical capacity to undertake such efforts themselves.

"I think the program could be of tremendous help. To have someone perform the labor for a widow, or someone who is incapacitated or on a fixed income is important," said Mrs. Mildred Withers, president of the Ulster County Senior Citizens Alliance.

"Keeping elderly people in their own homes makes a big difference in their attitude," she said.

But, with school closing in Kingston Friday, the money to fund the program has not been forthcoming. "I applied to several foundations and some of them said I applied too late, and to try again next January," Sanders said.

"Some foundations have indicated they are considering the program. I'm waiting to hear from IBM, the AMF Foundation and the Paley Foundation," he said.

"A lot of these foundations are addressed to a specific purpose which wouldn't include putting students to work. We're hoping that some foundations addressed to the elderly would give up some funding on that basis," he said.

"I'm sending out another batch of applications to foundations this week," he said.

This Friday, Sanders will address the Ulster County Senior Citizens Alliance to present his proposal to them and try enlist their help in his fund-raising effort. "What I will try to do is to get people to go back to their individual churches, and get the churches involved in granting some financial aid," he said.

Highland Rejects School Budget

HIGHLAND — Voters of the Highland Central School District Tuesday night rejected a proposed $4,309,383 budget for the 1976-77 school year.

The budget went down by 358-204 in what officials described as a light voter turnout, although it was heavier than last year's vote.

The result was regarded as a mild surprise, since Highland had passed budgets handily during the past several years while other districts were having trouble getting them through.

In other voting, incumbents Robert A. Hansut, Donald F. Halstead and Jon J. Mandy were re-elected to the board of education without opposition.

The rejected budget represented a 3.8 per cent increase over the current figure. Business Manager Robert Demarest said most of the increase went for employee fringe benefits and for two buses.

Hansut, the board president since 1972, was re-elected for his third term. He had served previously for a year as vice president. He is a construction engineer employed by Central Hudson.

Halstead, an IBM engineer, also was elected to his third term on the board. The third incumbent, Mandy, an executive with United Apple Sales and Costa Apple Products, was appointed in December, 1975, to fill the unexpired term of James Andreini, who resigned. All three take office July 1 for three year terms.

The board will meet in special session Tuesday, June 29, to make a decision on a budget revote.

Chief School Officer Donald Baines noted one immediate effect of the budget defeat. The district's summer school session will be canceled under the austerity budget which automatically becomes effective July 1.

Baines attributed the budget defeat to the change to 100 per cent assessment in the district. "In the past, we have been able to give the people dollars and cents figures on their tax bills," he said. "They just added two grievance days—I don't know when we will get the tax figures."

Paltz Picks McCarthy As Head of Schools

NEW PALTZ — The selection of Robert McCarthy as the new superintendent of the New Paltz School District was ratified last night at a meeting of the board of education in New Paltz.

McCarthy, 38, will give up his post as superintendent of the East Greenwich, R.I.

school district to begin his new job in New Paltz. He will take over the position previously held by Dr. James E. Hicken, who was granted a disability retirement last January.

There will be a reception held for McCarthy today from 11:30 to 1:30 at the middle school in New Paltz.

ABORTION

Parent OK Requirement Vetoed

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey, acting just minutes before a technical deadline, Tuesday night vetoed a bill that would have required parental consent before an abortion could be performed on a woman under 18.

Noting in his veto message that "no one need explain to me the significance of the family structure or the love and responsibility of a parent for a child," the governor, who has 12 children, said the bill was "illusory" and presented a "significant constitutional question."

He said the measure would not accomplish its stated purpose. "On the contrary, it is an attempt to substitute symbolism for a substantial and legally sound treatment of a serious issue."

Carey said young women from broken homes or with absent or non-functioning parents could not "as a practical matter obtain the consent required by this bill."

"Regrettably," Carey said, "a higher proportion of early teenage pregnancies are among those who lack a secure home. It is with respect to these children that the bill's defects are most glaring, since it would impose upon them a cruel and intolerable burden."

As to the measure's constitutionality, Carey noted that "substantially similar bills... are presently being challenged before the United States Supreme Court and a decision on their constitutionality is expected before the end of the court's term." Other states, he said, with one exception, have ruled the similar measures illegal.

The bill would have required the consent of a parent or legal guardian for an abortion for a woman under 18. Its provisions would not have applied to a married woman under 18 and also would have exempted cases where a doctor believed delay caused by obtaining consent would result in permanent and serious physical injury.

Carey said that he was "deeply committed to seeing that the right of a parent to care for a child is legally safeguarded. Even if one could agree that these objectives could be achieved by this bill, they would in fact not be so achieved since the constitutional questions presented would inevitably result in an immediate judicial stay of its enforcement pending the decision of the United States Supreme Court."

The governor said some supporters of the bill, even though they recognized the possibility of an adverse Supreme Court decision, urged him to sign the measure into law "because my signature would serve as a strong moral statement."

"I believe," Carey said, "there are less cynical and far more meaningful ways to make such a statement. Therefore, in order to determine what options are available or will become available... I shall appoint a commission with a mandate to achieve a workable legislative solution to a concern shared by all parents, either those who support abortion or those, like myself, who are morally opposed to abortion."

"That concern, and that goal, is to make it possible for parents to know when their children face a situation of personal anguish and crisis. There must be a constitutionally permissible way to achieve this result, and I will spare no efforts to find it."

The deadline for Carey to veto or sign the measure into law was midnight Tuesday. While the legislature is in session, the governor has 10 days to act on a bill or it automatically becomes law without his signature.

The measure had survived a stormy history in the legislature to make it to the governor's desk. A similar bill was approved in the Senate last year, but died in an Assembly committee.

This year, the Senate approved it, but provisions for criminal penalties of up to one year in jail were removed by the Democrat-controlled Assembly.

The sponsor, Assemblyman Frederick Schmidt, D-Queens, managed through a parliamentary procedure to have the bill restored to its original form after an unusual floor fight and it was ratified by a comfortable margin.

Pro-abortion and civil liberties groups contended the bill was another of several efforts to limit the right to an abortion. Proponents said it was a measure to protect the rights of parents.

Finally, the Lottery

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Next Tuesday is the day 24 ticketholders in three suspended state lottery drawings find out how $600,000 will be split up, according to John Quinn, director of the state's new lottery operation.

Quinn made the announcement Tuesday.

Last Wednesday, a State

Supreme Court justice cleared the way for completion of the games when he lifted an injunction imposed after allegations of mismanagement led the governor to suspend the lottery last fall.

Justice Abraham Gelnhoff of Manhattan permitted to drawings to proceed when Quinn signed an affidavit that no unsold ticket would be drawn as a winner, one of the complaints that had prompted suspension of the lottery.

The "grand tier drawings" for lottery games of Oct. 2, 9 and 16 "is the first step in honoring the commitment of the state to the ticket holders," Quinn said in announcing the special public ceremony.

He said there are eight finalists for the Oct. 2 lottery, 10 for Oct. 9, and six for Oct. 16 with the top prize for each $125,000, with $50,000 as second and $25,000 as third prizes and remaining finalists getting $2,000 each.

The prizes will be doubled if finalists match a "double up" number.

The drawings will be at 2:30 p.m. in Hearing Room C of the Legislative Office Building.

Gov Muzzles This One

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A bill aimed at unleashing the red tape involved in getting a license for the family pooch was muzzled today when Gov. Hugh Carey vetoed it.

The governor, in a message accompanying the veto, said that although the bill's purpose of streamlining the licensing procedures was "worthwhile," the measure skipped other requirements which would make implementation "impractical."

The bill would have eliminated the necessity for filling out both an application form and the license with identical information and would have made the application form become the license upon validation. It also would have eliminated the requirement that the dog tag bear the same number as the license.

Carey said the present system enables a monitoring of the licensing procedure and created a measure of accountability with the issuing of licenses. In addition, he said, scrapping the present system would create new costs and also waste the approximately $30,000 already spent for 1977 licensing supplies.

NASA Detector

HOUSTON (UPI) — Scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration say new techniques developed to detect micro-organisms in water systems on manned spacecraft can be used to spot harmful bacteria in municipal water supplies. Officials plan to incorporate the new processes in a system NASA is developing to monitor water quality electronically.

Barringer sister performing her specialty.

Rodeo Coming to Deitz

KINGSTON—Professional cowboys and cowgirls from across the nation will compete for $8,000 in prize money June 25 through 27 during a Bicentennial edition of the Star Spangled Rodeo to be held at Dietz Stadium.

Competitive events, specialty acts and trick and fancy riding by the Barringer sisters of Honolulu, Hawaii, will be among the many features of the rodeo. It will be held at 8 p.m. Friday; 2 and 8 p.m., Saturday; and 2 p.m., Sunday.

The rodeo is being sponsored as a fund-raiser by the county Democrats.

Among the competitive events scheduled are Brahma bull riding, saddle bronc riding, bare back riding, steer wrestling calf roping and cowgirl barrel racing.

From a start at a few rodeos 10 years ago to one of today's major events, the cowgirl's barrel racing has become popular from one end of the country to another. Cowgirls race their ponies around three barrels in a cloverleaf pattern, racing against the clock, with winners sometimes winning by split tenths of seconds.

Cowboy Joe Phillips, one of the world's fastest gun twirlers, who trains dogs for television acts, will perform with his dancing horse and his dogs.

Rodeo clowns will be on hand for all events, some capable of baiting a bull away from a fallen rider and others who keep spectators entertained with funny antics.

Special prices have been arranged for adults, children and for senior citizens who attend the Sunday performance.

Ban Old Goods

The Freeman's local consumer panel came up with some interesting points of concern in area markets last week. The assignment was unit pricing, but several of the women found food on market shelves with the marked expiration dates long past.

A little research revealed the merchants can sell their out-of-date merchandise without compunction; there are no local, county, state or federal regulations against the practice. There are, however, bills now before the State Senate and State Assembly that would legislate the "pull dates" and seek enforcement. Retail lobbyists are actively opposing any such law. Consumer advocates do not have the resources nor the wealth to effectively counter these pressures. The best support comes from consumers themselves. If you would like some assurance that the food you buy is at least as fresh as the supplier thinks it should be, write to your assemblyman or senator urging passage of this legislation. A groundswell from the electorate can counter the efforts of any lobby.

Rescue Squad Helped Her Son

Open letter to the Town of West Hurley:

Thank you seems so inadequate to the West Hurley Rescue Squad when your heart is so full of gratitude for their relentless effort, team work and compassion they have for their patient. You hear of the Rescue Squad and feel safe that they are available at a moment's notice, but you think of them as for someone else, not any part of your family.

Much to my sorrow, my 16-year-old son became the patient, unconscious for a long period of time for no apparent reason. The West Hurley Rescue Squad worked over him with such precision and concern, disregarding the hysteria of a heartbroken pleading mother who could have distracted a dead animal. No thanks to me, they got him to the hospital where he is doing pretty well less than 24 hours later. Hopefully it continues.

Every time I hear the West Hurley Rescue Squad siren, I will say a prayer for those wonderful men and women who give of themselves so fully and so unselfishly.

God bless. I will be eternally grateful.

Teacher Agrees: End Tenure

Dear Editor:

As a teacher I applaud your suggestion that tenure be eliminated as a teacher protection. With this protection of teachers' jobs removed it will, of course, be proper to grant teachers the same rights as other workers, including the right to strike. Teachers and local boards may then work out their terms of employment as equals, instead of the present system - expensive and illogical which pretends to provide equality but only offers ultimate punishment for the teachers.

The next logical step will be to remove the certification power from the hands of the Commissioner and the Board of Regents, and give it to the teachers themselves. A committee of active teachers and tax-paying parents, whose terms would rotate, would do a much more realistic job of demanding knowledge and expertise from the teachers-in-training than do the present bureaucrats, who have little or no knowledge of classroom problems.

With their destiny finally in their own hands, teachers would have to accept the responsibilities of a true profession, and citizens would learn to expect real education from professionally organized and trained teachers. Again I encourage your idea, but do remember that with elimination of job protection must come full rights for those left vulnerable.

The Bicentennial Is 'Bunk'

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter because I am sick and tired of hearing about the nation's Bicentennial. To me it is just a big rip off. Every day the rich are getting richer because we Americans are willing to swallow the hogwash that big business is ramming down our throats.

It is possible to buy just about anything that is desired in conjunction with our nation's founding. If you are fortunate enough to be able to pay the price.

Just what are we supposed to be celebrating, anyway? The backbone of this nation, the middle class, is growing weaker and weaker. Our politicians and lawmakers are constantly pounding the middle class worker into submission. Though the middle class worker is struggling to keep his head above water, elected officials continue to saddle him with more weight to carry. The officials continue to preach that "we" must tighten our belts and conserve our natural resources. And what do they do? Do they practice what they preach? While decent Americans are starving, our high and mighty officials continue to abuse their power to benefit themselves.

They all make promises when they are running for office, but do they keep them? They all say that they will change the system for the better. But they can't change it because they are products of it and it controls them.

I suppose that I am being unfair. There are probably some decent men and women who hold public office. But when I look around and see honest men and women struggling to make ends meet while men like Richard Nixon, Spiro Agnew, Ted Kennedy, Wayne Hays, Wilbur Mills, etc. etc., break the law and abuse the very trust that we instill in them, I can't help feeling the way I do. Especially since even when they are caught red-handed, nothing seems to happen to them. They continue to be virtually as free and powerful as ever.

The Bicentennial is, sadly, just a lot of bunk.

P.S. I have a 50 cent bet with my wife that you won't print this letter.

Robbing Hood Strikes Again

Dear Editor:

Robbing Hood and his Mer(cenary) Men have struck again.

Not content with a $12 million rate increase Dec. 1, 1974, a $5 million tax refund in Feb. 1975, plus another $3.25 million rate increase last December, Central Hudson applied yesterday for still another rate increase of 11.7 per cent.

But don't worry! "Dear Customer," said their circular, "it must be pointed out that the increased rates will not become effective until sometime in the spring of 1977."

How confidently they predict the action of the Public Service Commission in granting this rate increase for which they have just applied! As Shakespeare would say, "This fear-some fight is but another waltz."

On page three, the circular continues, "we provide jobs..." But on page one it read, "we have reduced the number of our employees from 1,486 on Jan. 1, 1974 to 1,408 on Dec. 31, 1975, curtailed construction projects wherever possible, declared a moratorium on our hiring...and have reduced contract work with outside firms to an absolute minimum."

They also generate cash flow in our community—from your bank account to theirs.

Then there is the final insult: "most of all we would appreciate your understanding...of all our endeavors which are designed to serve you better."

Hammer's Schemes

WASHINGTON - From the description in The Wall Street Journal, Moliere must have written and produced the last annual meeting of the Occidental Petroleum Corp. On the stage we have Armand Hammer, 78 years old, his heart hooked up by radiotelemetry to a backstage receiver where a nurse is monitoring the life signs of the old capitalist who is on a year's probation after pleading guilty in connection with illegal campaign contributions.

The audience of seven or eight hundred included several members of the Jewish Defense League, demanding that Hammer issue a statement attacking the Soviet Union for persecuting minorities, something Occidental's boss would be most unwilling to do inasmuch as one minority the Rusks don't persecute is big-time capitalists. Mr. Hammer has a multi-billion dollar deal going with the Reds, but that was no protection against stockholder questions about illegal or improper payments here and abroad. The defense against these embarrassing queries was that in the past seven years or so they came to less than $200,000, during which time the corporation had done better than $20 billion worth of business. A piddling sum.

Another sum, slightly less piddling, was the $850,000 used to pay Hammer's legal expenses. This was justified on the basis of a legal opinion, from a firm of lawyers whose name the Occidental wouldn't divulge, that when Hammer had done the things for which he pleaded guilty he "was acting in good faith within what he reasonably believed to be in the scope of his employment."

Such obtuse and comic indifference to the moral sentiments of others have seldom been seen outside the brutal, upper-class cynics of Moliere's theater. But if Hammer, with his nurses and his cardiac telemetry, comes across as the world's oldest and most laughable bionic plutocrat, he is but one of the more conspicuous examples of dubious corporate expenditures which has probably run into hundreds of millions in the last decade or so. Although the Securities and Exchange Commission is manfully at work trying to get everybody to fess up, the exact totals'll probably never be known. As it is we already know more than we can focus on, digest or analyze. How many people know about the lockbox in the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company's vault in Akron, and a Mr. Beasley, a Mr. Carter (Edward F., not Jimmy) and a Mr. Federico and Messrs. Raymond C. and Kimball C. Firestone themselves, and the elaborate system both here and abroad to generate untraceable cash for politicians?

So many companies have been involved in so many monkeyshines that the easiest thing to do is to scream for the incarceration of their top executives and then scream corruption and favoritism when the judges let 'em off without making 'em pull time. Even without lollipops like Armand Hammer,

The High Cost of Public Servants

Your congressman is your public servant. In the past few years, he has raised his salary 80 per cent. He also voted for an automatic cost-of-living raise. Of the 435 congressmen, less than 50 are present when the chaplain intones his one-minute prayer. The preacher gets $19,768 a year.

If your congressman can last 30 years, he could retire on a pension three-times greater than the full salary he earned as a freshman. He pays himself $44,825, and averages a staff of 16, including a press agent. He quintupled the number of government-paid trips home.

Should he die in office, the Congress will vote his widow one year's salary. He qualifies automatically for an insurance policy of $45,000. For this he pays $26.82 a month.

The Navy staffs a free medical clinic for him. Your congressman is allowed $7,500 a year for office supplies. What he doesn't spend, he pockets. Last year Senator John Tunney used his frank to send out 2 million pieces of mail.

Your servant is paid 12 cents a mile to return home 26 times each year. If he lives in Arlington, Virginia, he can elect to accept a lump sum of $4,500. If home is the State of Washington, the mileage amounts to a fortune.

At recess, he can go anywhere in the world on "official travel." If he takes his wife, she goes cut-rate. Congressmen seldom make an "official" trip to a country which is starving. Abroad, U.S. Embassy staffs dance attendance on the congressman.

big business has been too guilty, too clumsy, too distraught and too embarrassed to understand itself or explain itself to others.

Outside of trade associations and the business press, virtually no effort has been given over to explaining how these things could have happened and what business can and cannot do to prevent their repetition. For men who annually commit billions to advertising, their present public relations effort is incomprehensibly bad and will ultimately cost them yet more outside interference, more government regulation.

Some of the schemes by which illegal payments were concealed were probably so complicated that no auditor could be expected to pick them up, but many of them would have been discovered if the outside auditors that the corporations hired did indeed do their job like outside auditors, not like inside employees. This is no big new insight. The better people in auditing have been yelling, moaning and bitching about outside auditors going along with management and drawing up misleading, if not dishonest, balance sheets. The auditing industry has been meeting in committee over this for years, but the needed changes haven't been forthcoming. Now it is time for their major corporate customers to demand better of the major auditing firms which have so much to answer for in connection with these scandals.

In addition to auditors who don't audit, these corporations also have boards of directors who don't direct. The fault here lies with the outside directors who theoretically are supposed to watch out for this kind of thing and stop it. In fact most outside directors are cronies of the inside directors, guys who are running other corporations and whose membership consists mostly of lending their names but not their attention.

There are some companies now who pay their outside directors halfway decently and don't expect them to be somnambulant schlemiels but full-time, hard workers. They'd still be worthless if they're yes-men. Some energetic nomen would have mitigated this disaster for our businessmen.

These are the sorts of changes that would have spared business the enormous foolishness of an Armand Hammer; they would have prevented other kinds of imbecilities but they wouldn't have prevented much of the corruption, as it's called. More's involved here than greed, stupidity and telemetry, but that's for next time.

Feds Move On Farm Empire

WASHINGTON — The cumbersome federal machinery is beginning to move at last against A. Duda and Sons, whose vast agriculture empire has mistreated its lowly stoop laborers.

Last March, we sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, to southern Florida to investigate the plight of the migrant farm workers. Posing as a young drifter, he was picked up off the streets of Immokolee, Fla., and put to work in the fields of A. Duda and Sons.

He found the workers living in virtual bondage. They put in long, hot hours harvesting the farm's massive crop of ripening tomatoes. But nearly every dollar they earned went to pay for the overpriced food and illegal booze which Duda's strawboses provided.

Bernton's eyewitness accounts created a storm of controversy when we published them. Florida newspapers called for reforms, which were introduced in the Florida legislature.

But in Washington, the bureaucrats at the Labor Dept. merely squirmed uncomfortably and worried about how to stop the unpleasant publicity. Little was done to help the field hands whom the department was supposed to protect.

Now the situation is slowly reversing. The legislation to aid the migrant workers has been suppressed in Florida and the federal authorities are preparing to crack down on A. Duda and Sons.

A federal investigation of Duda's farming operations has largely confirmed our allegations. Ronald J. James, who is in charge of federal employment standards, has reported "substantial violations of both the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Farm Labor Contractor Act."

The federal investigators, for instance, uncovered "excessive charges for food and beverages." If these charges hold up in court, the Duda farm could be forced to close down its labor camps and pay back wages to its workers.

But the reform campaign has bogged down in Florida. At the request of State Sen. Jack Gordon, we sent Bernton to Tallahassee to testify about his experiences among the stoop laborers. He found the plush, red-carpeted hearing room packed with migrant farm workers.

Men, women and children had taken off a precious day from their field work and had driven all night to attend the hearings. They don't get paid, of course, when they don't work.

The growers and their lawyers were also in attendance. They huddled together in small knots. They wore expensive suits and jeweled wristwatches. Most of the field hands never owned a suit and can't afford a wristwatch.

House Agriculture Chairman Wayne Mixon rapped for order. One by one, the growers told how rosy life was down on the corporate farms. There was no need, they declared, for any additional legislation. Indeed, the bill could "kill the goose" that laid Florida's "golden eggs," they warned gravely.

One committee member was so impressed that, without waiting to hear the opposing testimony, he declared his fealty to the growers. He would vote against the reform bill, he announced.

Some of the witnesses attacked our column. We had published "oversensationalized accounts," they charged, of conditions on the Duda acres.

Bernton responded with an eyewitness report on the oppression he had found. He produced additional testimony that Duda had previously employed a vicious strawboses to oversee the labor camp, one now convicted of manslaughter, the other himself murdered by a migrant worker in North Carolina.

Bernton also revealed that the Florida Rural Legal Services had discovered nine illegally employed Haitians at another Duda camp, living in a minuscule, 10-by-20-foot cabin. Each Haitian was being charged $42 a week for meager meals of oxtail, cornbread, rice and beans.

The strawboses had threatened to send the police to arrest workers who tried to leave the camp before they had paid off their "debts." Some workers who had escaped the camp were tracked down and coerced back into camp by the strawboses.

After Bernton sat down the farm hands themselves stepped up to the rostrum to tell about the conditions they worked under. The committee responded by voting unanimously to kill the reforms.

The migrant workers didn't seem surprised. They slowly shuffled out of the hearing room and made their way to a nearby church where they dined upon beans and soup.

The plight of the migrant workers has never attracted much attention in the Florida legislature. The Agriculture Committee members have been too busy with the problems of the large planters. In some cases, the members are large planters. Teachers Respond to Tenure Opposition...

Kingston Teacher

PUBLISHED BY KINGSTON TEACHER'S
FEDERATION, LOCAL 781

LET'S ABOLISH THE DAILY FREEMAN

We don't know your first reaction to the Freeman's Sunday editorial (Let's Abolish Tenure). Our reaction was to come up with the title you see for this NEWSLETTER. If, as has often been repeated, ignorance is bliss, then someone on the Freeman staff is sublimely blissful.

But, as of this writing, we are having second thoughts. How could we live without the Freeman's advertisements? A newspaper that would cut the announcement of World War III to give us this week's specials is a journalistic gem we cannot wish into oblivion. Where else could we read the most current news from Spivey's Corner, North Carolina; Wheeling, West Virginia (on new basket design), or Fink, Texas but in the June 21st issue of our local paper.

Moreover, with the demise of the Freeman, a source of education of the highest order would be lost forever to our students. Where would we find examples of misspellings, poor sentence structure, even poorer paragraph development and non-factual story writing if not in the Freeman? It would just not be "professional" for us to allow this source of illiteracy to disappear.

Therefore please continue "not teaching anything," espousing "radical thoughts of the lunatic fringe" (including, says the Freeman, our school board) and "not giving the taxpayer's something for their money."

As is suggested in the editorial, next June you may line up on Fair Street and slowly file into the KTF office for your year's pay. But, please bring your grade books, term-end reports, report cards and attendance cards. Your "union" will not pay you unless you can demonstrate your "love for the pursuits of the mind and you have a good deal of learning to show for it."

Incidentally, we did make the Freeman in a positive way. In the June 21st edition appeared our "Letter to the Editor," answering an earlier inaccurate story. Also included in separate articles, were announcements of our scholarship winners and of our contract settlement.

Special to KTF members

Mike Tronolone of the Bailey School is doing automotive repair work this summer. Mike will be doing the work full-time and is equipped to handle both minor and major motor work. In addition, he will do electrical repair and autobody work (including paint jobs). He is skilled in both foreign and domestic cars. His labor rates are reasonable and he discounts all parts. Mike already has many satisfied customers among the staff. For more information call 246-8705 or 338-1665.

Committee on Excessing Meets

On Monday evening, June 21, a committee of teachers met at the Federation office to discuss problems which have arisen as a result of excessing. The committee has requested a meeting with the Board of Education.

Three copies of the Kingston Teacher's (sic) Federation's latest membership newsletter were delivered to the Daily Freeman Tuesday afternoon. Assuming it is intended as a reply to our editorial, which we reprint below, we have reproduced the statement, left, in its entirety.—the Editor

Let's Abolish Tenure

The original idea behind tenure for teachers was to protect academic freedom. Once a teacher had worked long enough to prove his competence, his guarantee of employment was supposed to isolate him somewhat from pressures to keep quiet on controversial topics in the classroom or to push upon his students pet notions of the school board or other organizations on the lunatic fringe.

Well, history has reversed itself — a feat it seems to accomplish as easily as repeating itself.

In the intermediate stage of its metamorphosis, tenure became a means for teachers to hold their jobs without teaching anything. Now, in the Wonderland of New York State, it seems to be preventing them from teaching what they know. Instead, they're supposed to teach what they don't.

Tenure is a dinosaur left over from the idealistic age when teachers were supposed to love the pursuits of the mind and to have a good deal of learning to show for it. Today, teachers are members of unions which should be adequate by themselves to protect their jobs and, today, no one seriously entertains the thought that an English teacher should be able to pass a high school mathematics examination — let alone conduct one.

Tenure should be abolished. After that small step, maybe we could start redesigning what we euphemistically call our educational system from scratch.

Perhaps the teachers unions could become independent contractors. The school board at the end of each year could pay the union a pre-determined sum to cover all teachers' salaries — after their students had demonstrated they had learned a pre-determined something. Perhaps then we taxpayers would know we'd gotten something for our money.

(This editorial from last Sunday's Freeman was prompted by a story on the so-called Baer Ruling, which says that when teaching positions are cut in New York school districts, tenured teachers must be allotted jobs within their tenure "areas" on the basis of seniority only—whether or not they are certified to teach the classes assigned. Theoretically an English teacher, for instance, could take a math teacher's job.)
(The editorial was reprinted this week by the Ellenville Record.)

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

On March 15, 1781, Gen. Nathaniel Greene's forces met British regulars under Lord Cornwallis in hand-to-hand combat at Guilford Courthouse, NC. The hotly contested struggle ended in a stalemate. At the close of the day, the American forces withdrew and the British claimed a victory but they suffered so severely that British statesman Fox proclaimed "another such victory will run the British army." His army crippled, Cornwallis withdrew to Wilmington, then, into Virginia and on to Yorktown. The World Almanac recalls

Gateway Holding Open House July 1

Koenig goes to work making commercial pallets for IBM at Gateway Executive Director Dana MacKay and clients Vinnie La Barbera and West Luther show him how its done

KINGSTON — Gateway Industries will hold an open house on Thursday, July 1 from 4 to 8 p.m.

Kingston Mayor Francis R. Koenig has declared the week of June 28 through July 3 Gateway Industries Week in recognition of the accomplishments of the program nearly 20 years in existence.

Presently 240 clients with a wide range of disabilities are in the Gateway program. After evaluation each client is taught a skill; he receives compensation in accordance with his production.

The clients are taught bench work skills and office services. All work is professionally supervised. Last year, the 240 program members took home over $170,000 in wages.

The open house program will include a tour through the main plant at 27 Hoffman St. in Kingston, with all clients on their regular work assignments. There will also be a display of items which have been manufactured or processed at the plant as well as an art display arranged by the Handicapped in Action group. Placement counselor Armando Lavergne will show a color-video tape of Gateway at work.

Gateway's new offsite location, the Vocational Counseling Center of Ulster County at 2 Jansen Ave., will be open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Kingston AARP Unit Installs Its Officers

KINGSTON — Newly elected officers of Kingston Chapter 2039, American Association of Retired Persons, were installed at the group's recent meeting at the George Washington School.

Installed were George Holmes, president; Emma Aprea, first vice president; William Blair, second vice president; Lucille Davidson, third vice president; Margaret McCardle, secretary; Lillian Marin, assistant secretary; John Barton, treasurer; Sophie Cornelske, assistant treasurer; and Ernest Myer and John McCardle, directors.

Gene Reibman, a New Paltz lawyer, was the guest speaker. He outlined the many rights and privileges available to senior citizens through Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, disability benefits, SSI benefits, and welfare. He also discussed wills and encouraged member of the chapter to create a will to determine the distribution of their assets as they wish.

Ernest Myer gave a brief report on the Bicentennial activities in the area and Lillian Martin discussed plans for bus trips to the Col- onie Theater on Aug. 8 for the Jim Nabors-Florence Henderson show and also to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center for the Ginger Rogers performance on Aug. 22.

The chapter is making plans for a covered dish supper picnic at Hasbrouck Park July 15 and the officers' installation dinner Sept. 16 at the Holiday Inn. Several of the officers of the local chapter will attend the AARP seminar at New Paltz June 30 and the October meeting will feature political candidates as speakers.

Holmes announced that several chapter members had walked in the Zonta Walkathon and that they had been responsible for about $200 in contributions for the event.

Committee chairmen named were Edmund Brower, community service; Robert Buntz, legislative; Mabel Myer, membership; Ward Tongue, nominating; and Frances Koerner, refreshments.

Mrs. Myer announced that membership has exceeded the 300 allowed and that membership would be closed until more vacancies occur.

The chapter meets on the third Thursday of each month and all persons 55 years of age and older are invited to join.

Smoking Clinic Set

MARGARETVILLE — A smoking clinic at the Margaretville Memorial Hospital will be held next month for those who want to give up smoking.

The clinic will be held every Thursday in July, beginning July 1 and ending July 28, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Given by Raymond Mofittan, the clinic will include lectures on various topics related to smoking. Blood pressures will be taken and pulmonary screening will be done at the first and last session.

The smoking clinic is free.

New Vehicle Tested

Practice demonstration of the fire-fighting capabilities of the new fire, rescue and crash vehicle

STONE RIDGE — The first fire, crash and rescue vehicle in Ulster County has been placed in service by the Stone Ridge Fire Company. Equipped with rescue and extraction devices, the truck also has tremendous fire-fighting capabilities, filling the need for better fire protection in the community. Prior to placing the truck in service a series of six training sessions were held on the use of the extraction equipment. Nineteen firemen and women from the county attended the sessions.

Additional training sessions are planned for which many more junk cars are needed. Anyone wishing to donate a car for these sessions may contact Chief John Albright to make arrangements.

Olive Day Event Set for July 10

WEST SHOKAN — The annual "Olive Day" celebration will be held this year on Saturday, July 10, at Davis Park in West Shokan, beginning at 2 p.m.

The Olive Day Committee, which in the past has sponsored such events as an ox pull and a fire muster, will celebrate the Bicentennial theme this year. Contests will be held for the longest beard, the longest moustache, the oldest man and oldest woman present at the festivities. The committee urges those who plan to attend to dress in their favorite historical costume, since prizes will be awarded for them. The fourth annual Remarkable Frog Jumping Contest will be held for youngsters and a new event has been added for those who find frogs a bit hard to catch. There will be a Bicentennial turtle race, billed as a one-time event.

Olive Day mugs are on sale at the Do-Nut Mix on Route 28 and at the Boiceville Inn. The mugs are specially made each year in limited numbers to increase their value as collector's items. This year's mug is designed around the theme "200 Years of Freedom."

Better Rates

CHICAGO (UPI) — The typical American home mortgage seekers got a much better rate break borrowing money last year than the typical corporation, according to the U. S. League of Savings Associations. The organization says for the greater part of 1975 the conventional rate on new home mortgages was under nine per cent, which was better than the rate at which AAA-rated corporations were able to sell their bonds.

Stone Ridge Library Fair Is Best Ever

STONE RIDGE—Great crowds moving along through the exhibits, all friendly and enjoying the events at the annual Stone Ridge Library Fair recently, brought in funds which, when evaluated in the next few days, the committee feels will top any previous fair.

The theme, "Our Patchwork Heritage" was emphasized with red, white and blue colors. The Library itself is housed in an old Stone building, circa 1770. Early crafts were demonstrated: home-made candles, spinning. There were home-made breads, preserves, cakes, cookies, handicrafts. The book sale was most profitable as was the country auction.

Something different was Taster's Choice, a booth featuring unusual favorites and international foods to be tasted. Recipes were sold along with the gourmet delights.

Entertainment from time to time on the Fair Grounds included New Jazz Quintet led by Harry Snyder; Geoffrey Miller and his guitar; and Terry Morgan with his Magic Show.

Jeanne Hunt and Te Perlberg were co-chairpersons this year with Dorothy Kelder as advisor.

WAITING INTENSELY for that balloon to be tied at the Stone Ridge Library Fair, are Sara Fogarty and her father, Jim.

NOW, NOW GIRLS, only one can take home that jacket. Clothes on the racks at Stone Ridge Library Fair proved a favorite spot for bargain hunters.

Two 'Firsts' Mark Local FSA Installation

KYSERIKE — Two firsts marked the recent installation of the Rondout Valley Chapter of the Future Secretaries Association in the high school library. It was the first school chapter of FSA in the area and the first anywhere to be sponsored by a Chapter-at-Large group.

Mrs. Elsie Secor, Mrs. Gloria Starling and Mrs. Bea Duplessis served as Chapter-at-Large sponsors for the new chapter. Mrs. Duplessis explained the aims, objectives and history of FSA and its parent organization, National Secretaries Association International.

Installed as officers of the new chapter were Abbe Herbert, president, Cathy Monte, vice president, Andrea Lockwood, secretary; and Denise Lamon, treasurer.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Dr. David

Bartlett, dean of students at Ulster County Community College. Invited guests were high school principal James Vertucci, secretarial department head Mrs. Marion Traver, faculty advisor Mrs. Lindy Gaffney and business administrator Lee Comeau.

and true booths will be a new idea in the antique auction booth. Each night Bud Smith will accept sealed bids on items being offered. The persons who bid the highest on the individual pieces will take home some unique treasure.

There will be dancing to Live Bands. The sound on Friday night will be by a group called "Libra." Saturday's schedule includes Michael Allen and his group, "Free Wheelin'."

"The Whole Family Band" will play Sunday night. This band of six musicians and a female vocalist is among the top groups in the area.

1976 SPAC Season Opens Friday with Judy Collins

SARATOGA—The Saratoga Performing Arts Center 1976 season will open with a parade of back-to-back popular music specials beginning Friday, June 25 at 7 p.m., with a concert by Judy Collins, one of the lasting voices to surface during the folk singing Renaissance of the 1960's.

Tale spinner Harry Chapin will follow on Saturday, June 26 at 7 p.m., with Neil Sedaka—the come-back story of this decade—returning to the Center on Sunday, June 27 at 8.15 p.m. The accent will be on guitar on Monday, June 28 at 8.15 p.m. when B.B. King and Les Paul share the spotlight. They will be followed on Tuesday, June 29 at 7.00 p.m. by Seals and Crofts.

Judy Collins is a perennial talent whose distinctive style and penetrating lyrics provide a link to the turbulent times of the 60's. She was active as a singer of protest songs during both the civil rights and anti-war movements. Like Bob Dylan, her direction changed with the times and she gradually evolved into a singer of folk-rock. Over the years she has found equal success in concert halls and coffee houses.

Harry Chapin achieved "overnight" success several years ago with a narrative song called "Taxi." Since then he has been unchallenged as the king of storytellers among songwriters. The Elektra recording artist first appeared at the Performing Arts Center a year ago in a concert that turned out to be the "sleeper" of the season. Everyone knew he was good on records, but successful new recording stars have been known to disappoint audiences in concert. Not so with Harry Chapin. The audience and critics alike were ecstatic about his live performance.

One observant writer has noted that the present full-fledged revival of Neil Sedaka is like "a breath of fresh air." "He brings to many of his own numbers an effervescent, good natured energy that no one else can quite match," said another Sedaka, of course, was a super-star when the 1950's gave way to the 60's and his come back has the endorsement of no less a 70's superstar than Elton John. Elton not only signed Sedaka to record for his own Rocket Records, but he also sings backup for him as well.

B.B. King is the present-day champion of blues guitarists, with a vocal style that finds roots in the music of the great blues minstrels who wandered the land in the early part of this century. He is one of the few performing artists in the popular field who has captured the imagination of young and old blues fans alike. He will be joined by Les Paul whose over-dubbing techniques in the late 1940's and early 1950's established him as one of the most innovative guitarists of all time.

Seals and Crofts need little introduction to the younger generation. Their musical excellence and intimate delivery have made them one of the most popular duos of this decade.

Tickets for all SPAC performances may be purchased at the Route 50 Box Office and at all Ticketron and Saratoga Festival agencies.

Member of Local Court for 63 Years

CDA Honors Jane Madden as 'Woman of Year'

JANE MADDEN

KINGSTON—Miss Jane Madden, a member of Court Santa Maria No. 164, Catholic Daughters of America, for 63 years was named "Woman of the Year," and honored by the Court for her outstanding service at a luncheon Saturday, June 19 at the Capri '400' Restaurant in Port Ewen.

Miss Madden held the Court's highest office of regent during 1926, 1927 and 1928, and served as trustee for many terms. A member of the teaching profession, she has always been interested in youth and was instrumental in organizing a junior chapter for Court Irenita of Poughkeepsie in 1927. She helped write the history of the Court for its 50th anniversary.

Never refusing to work on any committee, she has been in charge of reservations for all Court functions for many years. During the past 63 years, thousands of bandages for incurable cancer victims have been made due to her efforts and under her guidance. To this day, she still continues to make bandages from old sheets which are then shipped to the medical missions. Shut-ins, also, have enjoyed her friendship, remembered by her in special ways and receiving personal visits.

District Deputy Mrs. Mary Gaffney spoke briefly, reminiscing about her association with the guest of honor. A gift from the Court was presented to Miss Madden by Regent Alice Krom.

After the luncheon, a fashion show was presented by Lady Bug Fashion Gallery. Models included Anne Marie Bruder, Margaret Garavan, Dorothy Prosser, Dorothy Scholl and Joan Woinoski.

The committee in charge of arrangements included Katherine Sweeney, chairperson; Katherine Haines, Marie Dobkins, and Margaret Mitchell.

Three new members, Mrs. Helen Ranalli, Miss Margaret Sheehan and Mrs. Catherine Conlin, were inducted into the Court on June 10. Upcoming events include the annual banquet on Sept. 23 at The Hedges, and an old-fashioned card party on Oct. 28 at Knights of Columbus hall.

Woman's Club Officers Installed

Dear Abby

Work for One Week If Unqualified, No Pay

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old boy who was able to graduate from high school early because I passed the required tests. My problem is I need a summer job, but nobody will hire me because I have had no experience. Abby, how can a person get experience if nobody will hire him?

I am a responsible, hard-working boy who has never been in any kind of trouble, and I'm willing to do anything—run errands, wait on tables, sweep the floors, answer the phone, box groceries—you name it. And if I don't know how to do it, I will learn.

So far I have applied for 22 jobs, but nothing has materialized.

Abby, how can a person without pull or connections get a job? I'm beginning to think it's impossible. —DISCOURAGED

DEAR DISCOURAGED: Go back to some of the places you've applied and tell them that you are honest, dependable, hard-working and so eager to prove your worth that you'll work for one week with no obligation on their part, and if they feel you don't qualify, they owe you nothing.

You may not be hired instantly, but I'll bet your name goes to the top of the list. Try it and let me know how you come out.

DEAR ABBY: Last weekend my husband's 24-year-old brother (I'll call him "Bill") came to town and stayed with us.

We planned to dine out with another couple and had engaged a 13-year-old neighbor girl to sit with our two little ones.

Bill was going out with his friends that evening and was waiting for us to finish dressing before he showered and shaved. He said he'd do that after we left and while the sitter was here.

I put my foot down and insisted that Bill shower quickly and leave the house with us. I didn't think it would be right for him to be alone in the house with a 13-year-old girl, even though he is a very nice young man. I knew that the sitter's mother would be horrified to learn that we left her daughter alone with a 24-year-old man, and I felt the girl herself might feel ill at ease.

Bill was furious with me, and my husband thought I was crazy to think there would be anything wrong in leaving Bill with the sitter. Was I wrong to feel that way? —TAKING NO CHANCES

DEAR TAKING: Yes. You owe Bill an apology.

DEAR ABBY: I am to be married in the fall and need your opinion about something that has caused considerable conversation in our family.

I have asked my favorite aunt to be one of my bridesmaids. She is 44 and very young-looking. She refused, saying, "Everyone would say I looked foolish with all those young girls, and it would spoil your day." (The other bridesmaids are from 17 to 26.)

I need your advice. —BALTIMORE BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: I can't possibly know what "everyone" would say, and neither can your aunt. She's obviously more concerned with her own image than eager to participate in your wedding. Don't coax her.

ROSENDALE—Officers were installed at the June meeting of the Woman's Club of Rosendale and this year's scholarship winner was among the guests. The meeting was held at Williams Lake.

Mrs. Ida Roscetti of Walden, Woman's Club state president, installed Mrs. Roger Beaulieu, president; Mrs. Robert Sheehan, vice president; Mrs. Albert Morelli, recording secretary; Mrs. James Merck, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Paul Purcell, treasurer.

The scholarship, an award of

Karin Krajick Is Scholarship Winner

A member of this year's graduating class at Kingston High School, the winner plans to attend Maria College in Albany where she will major in nursing. She was a Candystriper at Benedictine Hospital in 1972 and 1973. Her mother is a graduate of Benedictine School of Nursing and is presently working in the intensive care unit.

She is one of a set of triplets and her two brothers will also attend college this fall. Another brother has graduated from Columbia University and is attending the graduate school in journalism at Columbia.

Reggae Rock Beat to Pulsate at Playhouse

WOODSTOCK—For two nights the reggae rock beat will pulsate at the Woodstock Playhouse. On June 25 and 26 at 7 and 10 p.m. Martha Velez and band will head concerts of both U.S. and Caribbean groups.

This concert replaces Orleans which was forced to cancel all East Coast bookings. On Friday evening Martha Velez will be joined by The Full Hand, direct from Jamaica. On Saturday evening the Elephant's Memory and Moja Nya direct from Dominica will appear.

Reggae's spirit comes from Rastafarian, the sect named after Ethiopian emperor, Haile Salassie, nee Ras Tafari Makonnen and calls up a lion image. "Reggae is more than just rhythm and pulse. You have to be willing to let yourself go. Once you find yourself falling into a groove, it can take you. It is ritualistic like a whirling dervish," states

Martha Velez.

All tickets are $4. Ticketholders of Orleans may use the same tickets for the Reggae Rock or may return them for refund prior to Thursday, June 24 at 8 p.m. The Woodstock Playhouse, junction of routes 212 and 375 accepts telephone reservations.

Oh, the Problems with Family Vacations

Well, the family has finally decided on a date when we can all take a vacation.

It's a shame it isn't the same date, but then nothing is perfect.

All winter long, we've been stumbling over one another. The vacation season comes and everyone scatters like newborn field mice on a cold day.

"My dates are inflexible," announced my husband. "When you're an educator they get sticky if you take off while the children are there."

"I've got my part-time job that ties me up," said a son. "When does it end?"

"On the day I fail to show up."

"What about the last week in August, gang?"

"That's when we all go back to school."

"What about the third week of August?"

"We start football practice."

"The second week of August?"

"I got tickets for a concert."

"The last week of July?"

"I've got that dental work that can't be put off."

"And the third week of July?"

"Impossible. They're painting the house that week."

"Okay then, the second."

"Count me out. I'm babysitting for the Sterups."

"The first week of July?"

"Travel on a holiday weekend? Absolutely not."

"Okay, then, the last week of June."

"That's between paychecks and I can't afford it."

"What's everyone doing this week?"

"If you think I can pull together new underwear for this group in a couple of days, you're crazy," I said flatly.

"Turn back the calendar and we'll run through it again," said my husband.

You know, I liked it better in the good old days when we packed the playpen, the potty chair, the feeding table, the vaporizer, the feeding dish that revolved and played "Mary Had A Little Lamb," the rocking chair, eight suitcases, three foot lockers, an inflatable wading pool, a security blanket, a baseball return net, and two tricycles and Daddy snarled. We're going to have a great time or I'm going to break a few heads.

U.S. Naval Academy Vessels Due Here on Bicentennial Cruise

KINGSTON—Two Yard Patrol Craft from the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., will arrive in Kingston Monday, June 28, with their midshipman crews for an afternoon and evening of exchange visits with city residents.

The small ships are scheduled to arrive at 2 p.m. and depart early Tuesday morning. They will dock at the foot of Broadway, at the same location as the Bicentennial Barge this weekend.

The midshipmen will be taken on a guided walking tour of the Stockade area in the afternoon by the Friends of Historic Kingston. They will be guests of the Kingston Bicentennial Commission for a picnic supper.

The visiting boats make up Subdivision Two-Two of an 11-boat YP Squadron on a summer training cruise between Annapolis and New York. The Squadron is scheduled to visit New York City June 25 and 26 and the U.S.

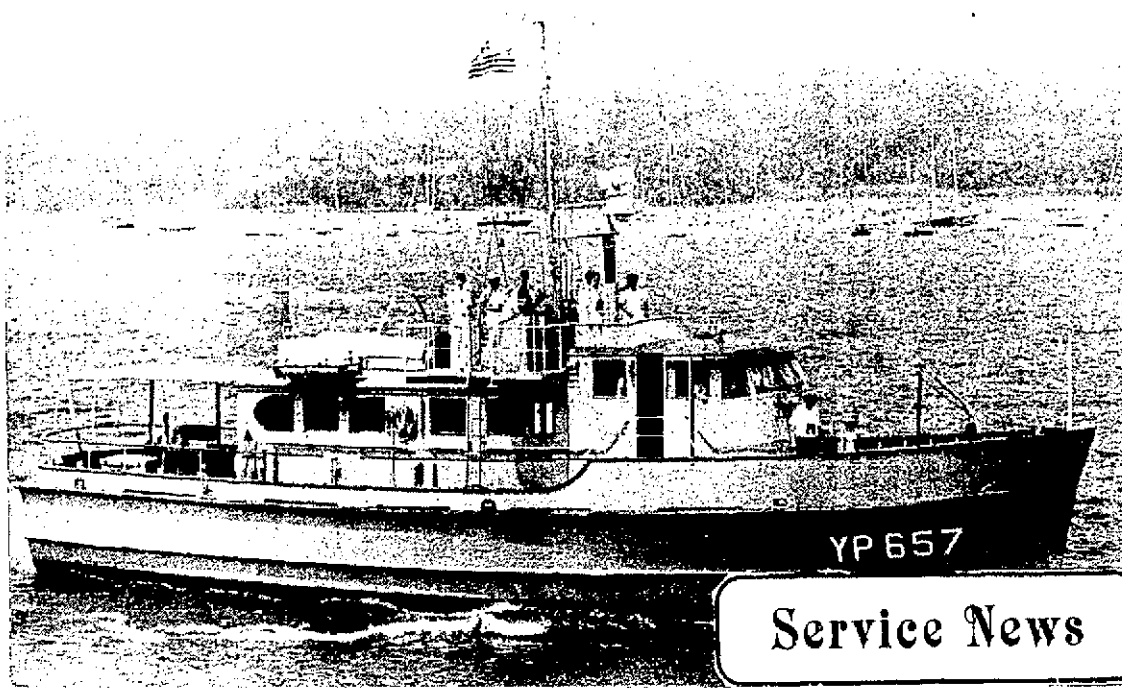

Military Academy at West Point on June 27.

From West Point, the Squadron will break into four subdivisions to visit eight cities in the Hudson River Valley, including Kingston. The YPs will be open for public visiting shortly after arriving in Kingston. The YPs carry a crew of 15 midshipmen second class (juniors) and two officer instructors. Potential Naval Academy candidates will have an opportunity to view one facet of midshipman training. Crews will be on hand to answer questions. While Subdivision Two-Two visits Kingston, other subdivisions will be visiting Albany, Athens and Hudson. When Two-Two departs Kingston Tuesday morning it will go to Peekskill while other units will get underway to visit Beacon, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh. The cruise to New York and the Hudson Valley combines one phase of Naval Academy's normal midshipman summer training with its observance of the nation's bicentennial.

Area Man Participates in Review

NEW YORK—Navy Electronics Technician Third Class A. Reed Aiken, 20, son of Lawrence W. Aiken of Stone Ridge, is scheduled to participate in the International Naval Review in New York Harbor on July 4 as a crewman on the amphibious transport dock USS Austin. He is one of the 20,000 Navy men taking part in the Navy's formal Bicentennial commemoration of our nation's maritime heritage. The review will include a total of 50 ships representing more than 30 countries.

The event will be the fourth International Naval Review sponsored by the United States. The last was conducted in 1957 in Hampton Roads, Va. His amphibious transport dock will join 21 other U.S. ships taking part in the review. The task force is composed of ships from the Atlantic Fleet and is led by Vice Admiral John J. Shanahan, commander of the U.S. Second Fleet. Its participation in the review is one of the most significant events of an ongoing fleet exercise entitled Operation 200.

A 1973 graduate of Ontario High School, Aiken joined the Navy in October of that year. His ship is homeported in Norfolk, Va.

Aids in Rescue Mission

HURLEY—Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Craig R. Jansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jansen of 11 Overlook Drive, Hurley, recently participated in the at-sea rescue of the 61-foot ocean racer Sorcery while serving aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Mellon.

Sorcery was enroute to DelRay, Calif., from Tokyo when it encountered a severe storm that completely disabled it and injured 11 crew members. Mellon responded to Sorcery's distress signal, battling 40-foot waves and hurricane-force winds to bring the injured crew members aboard for medical assistance. The racer was taken in tow to the Coast Guard Station at Kodiak, Alaska. Jansen, a 1974 graduate of Kingston High School, joined the Coast Guard in July, 1975. He is based in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Billy's Tombstone Is Back

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (UPI) — The tombstone of gunfighter Billy the Kid is back at its grave site from where it was stolen 26 years ago, but this time officials have taken precautions against thieves.

The tombstone, which carries the epitaph "The Boy Bandit King — He Died as He Lived," is encased in a steel band welded to a steel plate buried in concrete.

The tombstone of the famous gunfighter was taken from the old Fort Sumner cemetery Aug. 30, 1950, but was found last month in a field near Cranbury Tex. by a local historian.

Billy the Kid was born William Bonney in New York City Nov. 23, 1860. Legend has it that he killed 21 men before he was fatally wounded by Lincoln County Sheriff Pat Garrett July 14, 1881.

Garrett had trailed Billy to Fort Sumner after the gun fighter, who grew up in New Mexico and took part in the Lincoln County cattlemen's war, had escaped from the jail at Lincoln, N.M.

Candidate Suffers Seizure

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, a candidate for president in Sunday's presidential election, suffered a heart attack today and was rushed unconscious to a hospital in Oporto.

Adm. Pinheiro de Azevedo entered the emergency ward of the hospital unconscious, his heart and respiratory action stopped, a spokesman at the Sao Joao hospital said.

The spokesman said Azevedo's heart and breathing action were revived but the doctors' prognosis for his condition was "reserved."

A press aide to the prime minister said the heart attack occurred in an automobile in which Azevedo left a news conference. The aide said Azevedo's wife, Maria, was with him and they were probably on their way to the airport to return to Lisbon.

The prime minister has had at least two heart attacks before. During the siege of his residence by Communist-led construction workers last November, he was ordered by his doctors to rest because of his heart condition.

Pension Issue in Dems' Laps

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Senate approval of a plan to put the brakes on runaway public pension costs has put the politically volatile issue right in the laps of Assembly Democrats.

The issue was forced on the Democrats by a lopsided Senate vote of 43 to 12 Tuesday night and was expected to be the focal point of a party conference today.

Legislative sources said a likely compromise would be to cut out the Senate bill's provision for employee contributions.

The Assembly majority, with many lawmakers coming from New York City districts and mindful of the political influence of public workers unions, had been pushing for a simple one-year extension of alterations enacted temporarily in 1973.

The Senate Republican proposal was a one-year plan, but it was proposed as a model for eventual permanent pension overhaul.

It would end the almost universal policy of requiring no employee contribution to retirement plans, reduce local government's share of pensions by incorporating Social Security benefits, and merge several existing plans into a single statewide system.

Current pension plans for 12 million public workers statewide are costing an estimated $3.5 billion a year, a cost which officials have warned would continue a steady upward climb for the next several years.

Action on pension reform had been stalled until the announcement Monday that the Senate was ready to go ahead with its own version, which implemented many of the recommendations of the so-called Kinzel Commission.

The sponsor of the measure, Sen. Fred Eckert, R-Rochester, claimed it would save state and local governments $2 billion over the next 10 years.

WELFARE

Upstate Execs Bemoan Fact of Little Sympathy From Legislators

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Despite adding the "new dimension" of New York Mayor Abraham Beame's support to their campaign for welfare reform, upstate county executives say they have gotten little more than sympathy from state legislators.

Beame and representatives of several major counties lobbied Tuesday for legislative approval of a freeze on local welfare costs.

However, according to a spokesman for the Association of County Executives, the local government officials obtained "sympathy for our problems, but no commitment to action."

Edwin Crawford, Broome County executive and president of the association, said the group wanted approval of a bill that would permit counties to budget the same amount for welfare in 1977 that they spent in 1976, with the state picking up any increase in welfare and Medicaid costs.

Crawford noted that New York City's joining with the counties "adds a new dimension to our campaign."

"The legislature's favorite trick is to fragmentize us; upstate against downstate, urban against rural," Crawford said. "Perhaps that is all over; perhaps now we will come to Albany together, and this will give us added strength."

In the meantime, although some lawmakers agreed to introduce the freeze legislation, leaders told the county officials "the state just doesn't have the money," Crawford said.

Robinson: The Season Is Young

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cleveland Indians Manager Frank Robinson says the season is young and New York Yankees outfielder Elliott Maddox would be the first to agree with him.

The Indians, behind Charlie Spikes' first home run of the season, Dave LaRoche's clutch relief pitching and a key defensive play by Duane Kuiper, snapped the Yankees' seven-game winning streak Tuesday night with a 3-2 victory to move within seven games of New York in the American League East.

"The season is young and we will be in the race," Robinson promised. "We've had good defense all year but our hitting has been very spotty."

The Indians had a chance to flaunt some of that good defense in the ninth inning when Chris Chambliss led off with a double off starter Rick Waits and moved to third on Graig Nettles' fly ball.

At that point, Robinson replaced Waits, who yielded eight hits, with LaRoche, and, with the infield playing in to cut off the run at the plate, Fran Healy ripped a hard ground ball up the middle. Kuiper, who had three hits, ranged far to his right, made a diving back-handed catch, checked Chambliss at third and threw Healy out at first for the second out.

"I was very surprised that Chambliss didn't go for the plate, although when the ball was hit it looked like it was going right at Kuiper," Robinson said. "But it would have taken an excellent play to throw him out."

LaRoche then induced Willie Randolph to hit a routine fly to center on the next pitch to pick up his eighth save and preserve Waits' second win in three decisions.

Spikes' homer deep into the left field stands came off Catfish Hunter in the seventh and dealt the Yankees' star right-hander his seventh loss against eight victories.

SPORTS TODAY

For Maddox, an All-Star center fielder with New York, the season is indeed very young. When he pinch-hit a double in the eighth inning Tuesday night, it marked his first appearance since suffering ligament damage in his left knee making a diving catch on a wet turf more than a year ago. His career had been considered in jeopardy.

Spurred in their efforts to land Brooks Robinson, the Chicago White Sox have reluctantly turned third base over to a rookie who admits surprise at even being in the major leagues.

But after Tuesday night's 14-8 victory over the Kansas City Royals, they're breathing a little bit easier about the experiment.

Kevin Bell, recalled from the minors last week, spearheaded the White Sox assault with an inside-the-park grand slam homer in the third inning and raised his average nearly 100 points with a 3-for-5 performance at the plate. Bell's hitting heroics, sandwiched around a three-run homer by Jim Spencer and a two-run shot by Jorge Orta, gave Chisox Manager Paul Richards one of the rare opportunities to smile in the last two weeks.

"Our needs were greater than his," Richards said in explaining why the White Sox chose to bring up the 20-year old Bell so soon. "We were talking around for a third baseman (Robinson) and we

4, Minnesota drubbed California 10-6, and Oakland put away Texas 5-2.

Red Sox 6, Orioles 5

Bobby Darwin, who hit a grand slam homer in the first, knocked in Fred Lynn from third with a two-out infield grounder in the top of the 15th. Darwin grounded to shortstop Mark Belanger, whose throw for a force at second was late—as was the subsequent relay to first. Reggie Jackson had a three-run homer for Baltimore in the first and robbed Darwin of a homer in the 14th with a sensational catch.

Tigers 10, Brewers 4

Alex Johnson had three hits, scored twice and drove in a run to spark a 20-hit Detroit deluge which saddled the Brewers with their fourth straight loss and sixth in seven games. Hank Aaron hit his 752nd career homer—and fifth in his last eight games—for Milwaukee in the fourth.

Twins 10, Angels 6

Rod Carew had three hits including a three-run homer, while Dan Ford added a two-run shot as the Twins routed California. Rockies Butch Wynegar and Bob Randall each had three hits in the 17-hit Minnesota attack. Jim Hughes, 3-8, struggled through six innings to gain credit for the win.

A's 5, Rangers 2

Dick Bosman, with eighth inning relief from Paul Lindblad, hurled the A's to their third victory in four games. Bosman, 1-0, yielded six hits including a solo homer by Roy Howell. Ken McMullen also homered for the A's, who went ahead to stay in the third when Bill North singled, stole second and came home on an error by center fielder Juan Beniquez.

Denny Was in Control

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — John Denny dazzled the New York Mets with a three-hitter Tuesday night and now says he's questioning the value of the overpowering fastball.

"I can throw harder but I didn't," said the St. Louis Cardinal pitcher. "I just tried for real good control — throwing the ball exactly where I wanted and I was a lot more relaxed."

Denny might have been relaxed but the Mets, losing their sixth straight 3-0, weren't very comfortable. Only 31 Mets went to the plate. Denny gave up singles to Dave Kingman in the second, John Milner in the seventh and Felix Millan in the ninth and he hit one batter. Denny's record is now 3-4.

"I was very comfortable moving the ball around," Denny said. "I was getting ahead of most of the hitters and I didn't feel as tired as I usually do. I was concentrating a lot. I was sailing pretty good."

"It's the best game he's ever pitched to me," said catcher Ted Simmons. "John sometimes gets upset in a game but he wasn't bothered by anything. That's what I would call maturity."

Simmons and Lou Brock drove in the St. Louis runs in the first inning. Bake McBride, the National League's leading hitter, led off with a single, Brock doubled and Simmons singled.

Simmons was starting on his new pattern of catching once a week for the Cards. Joe Ferguson, acquired last week from Los Angeles for Reggie Smith, will catch the other games while Simmons plays first base.

"I feel like I've been reincarnated," said Simmons. "I look forward to catching now. The last six years I've averaged 152 games a year behind the plate, and there's no way I could keep that up."

St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst said, "I'll play Simmons behind the plate once a week or so. When he catches, Ron Fairly or Keith Hernandez will have a chance to play first base."

It should never be said that Randy Jones is "walking off" with the National League's Cy Young Award. It's better to say "running off" because walks and Randy Jones just don't mix.

The 27-year-old left-hander of the San Diego Padres posted his 13th win of the season Tuesday night by stopping the San Francisco Giants 4-2 on four hits and in the process equaled a 63-year-old National League record for most consecutive innings without walking a batter.

Jones tied the legendary Christy Mathewson's NL record of 68 consecutive innings without issuing a base on balls, then saw that string broken in the seventh inning when he walked the leadoff batter, Marc Hill. Jones walked another batter later in the game but didn't give up a hit after the second inning as he went the distance for the 12th time this year.

Jones even had a hand in the winning rally as he singled in the seventh inning and scored ahead of Tito Fuentes' first homer of the season.

The victory enabled the Padres to move into second place in the NL West, five games behind first place Cincinnati and a half-game ahead of Los Angeles.

"It was harder tonight," said Jones, referring to his winning performance. "I knew the Dodgers were losing when I went to warm up and when I saw they lost, I knew we could go into second place. I fought myself from the eighth inning on. I wasn't really squeezing the ball."

Jones admitted he was relieved that the "walk thing" was over so that he could once again concentrate on getting batters out rather than trying not to walk them.

"I can go more relaxed now," Jones said. "It was getting to be like going for my 20th win last year. But it's not hard to put things in order. Being in second place comes first, winning my 13th game is second and the walk thing is third."

Padres Manager John McNamara said his club's surge into second place is no fluke and that the Padres don't intend to settle for being only No. 2.

"You can bet we're for real," said McNamara. "Everyone would like to take us easy but we're for real. Ask any other ballclub. We're not looking back at the Dodgers, we're looking at first place."

In other NL action, Cincinnati blanked Los Angeles 6-0, Montreal downed Philadelphia 8-3, Houston outslugged Atlanta 9-7 and Pittsburgh beat Chicago 10-7.

Reds 6, Dodgers 0

Fred Norman tossed a four-hitter and reserve Doug Flynn drove in three runs to lead the Reds over the Dodgers. Norman, boosting his record to 5-1, struck out six and walked only one in besting Don Sutton, who suffered his seventh loss against six victories. The defeat dropped the Dodgers 5½ games behind the first place Reds in the NL West.

Expos 8, Phillies 3

Clay Kirby won his first game of the year after five losses with the aid of strong relief by Dale Murray and some lusty hitting by Gary Roenicke, Mike Jorgensen, Pat Scanlon and Barry Foote. Roenicke hit a two-run double, Jorgensen and Scanlon had solo homers and Foote a two-run triple as the Expos tagged Jim Lonborg with his fourth loss. Greg Luzinski hit his 10th homer for the Phils.

Astros 9, Braves 7

Bob Watson's two-run double highlighted a four-run eighth-inning which carried the Astros past the Braves. Watson, who also had another double and a single, accounted for six runs, driving in three and scoring three. Tom Paciorek had a grand slam homer for Atlanta while the Braves' Rowland Office extended his hitting streak to 27 games.

Pirates 10, Cubs 7

Rennie Stennett sparked a 19-hit attack with five singles as the Pirates outslugged the Cubs. Stennett drove in two runs and scored two more and Richie Zisk, Willie Stargell and Bill Robinson also had two RBIs apiece for Pittsburgh. Jerry Morales and Bill Madlock homered for Chicago.

Oakland Trio Is in Limbo

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charlie Finley may have some help in his planned $10 million suit against baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, but the focal point of the furor are three guys who feel they are limbo.

Attorney Neil Papiano, who represents Oakland A's owner Finley, said Tuesday that he is talking to "other interested parties" about the suit against Kuhn, who vetoed Finley's $3.5 million sale of three of the club's top stars—Vida Blue, Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi.

"We are talking with other interested parties and getting some of their input, and we want to have a discussion again before we file," said Papiano.

In New York, meanwhile, Players Association director Marvin Miller said his group is concerned about how to get Rudi, Fingers and Blue back in uniform and on the playing field.

"Our immediate consideration is to rectify the completely unfair situation of these players involved, who through no fault of their own, find themselves really placed into inactivity, which represents damages and jeopardy to their careers."

Finley refuses to play the three stars, lest one gets hurt and then the sales win approval.

Rudi and Fingers were peddled to Boston for $1 million each and Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million on June 15, but Kuhn voided the sales on the grounds they weren't in the best interest of baseball. Finley announced he would sue.

Rudi, Fingers, and Blue accompanied Oakland to Anaheim, although manager Chuck Tanner can't let them play but must keep them on the squad roster. He said he took the three players along "because the commissioner says they are still on the roster and we want to let them work out with us if they want to."

Oakland is 5-3 so far without the three stars. American League President Lee MacPhail confirmed Blue had signed a three-year contract with the A's at the Yankees' insistence before the sale to the New York

Dave Roberts clears bar

Roberts Breaks Record With Borrowed Pole

EUGENE, Ore (UPI) — To a pole vaulter the most prized possession in the world is his pole.

He'll guard it the same way other people protect a loved one. Lay a hand on his pole without asking and it's the same as inviting a punch in the mouth. Ask a vaulter about his jump and he'll tell you how much a part his pole played in it.

After Dave Roberts took the pole vault record to 18-5½ Tuesday at the U.S. Olympic Track and field Trials you'd have to say all the talk about poles is so much hogwash.

That's because Roberts broke his favorite pole and didn't even shed a tear. He simply asked Earl Bell, whose record he took away, if he could use his and Bell said okay.

On the third try with Bell's pole, which is about two pounds lighter and slower than his, Roberts cleared the record height. Of course, he said it was due to Bell's pole.

"You helped more than you know," Roberts said to Bell, whose world record of 18-7¼ was set about a month ago at the Federation Games in Wichita, Kan.

Bell lost his record setting pole, someone apparently stealing it from him, and he competed here Tuesday with a new pole—the one he eventually loaned to Roberts.

"It's not like my old pole," Bell said, "but it isn't that bad."

Bell cleared 18-¼, as did Terry Porter, and they joined Roberts on the team that will represent America at the Montreal Games next month. Probably because he wasn't using his favorite shaft, Bell said he didn't think the pole made that much difference in Roberts' record leap.

"It's the vaulter who breaks the record and not the pole," he said. If that's so then why is he offering a reward for the return of his record setting pole—the one that was stolen. So much for poles.

When Roberts set his record here it marked the third straight Olympic Trials in which an American established a standard in the pole vault. Bob Seagen took the mark to 17-8½ at Echo Summit, Calif., in 1968 and to 18-5¼ in Eugene four years ago.

Seagen saw Roberts' record, and you guessed it, he thought he did quite a job with a borrowed pole.

"I think it's fantastic," Seagen said, "because he did it with a pole of different weight than his own—the one he snapped."

Roberts said he didn't feel any pressure on his record trying attempts.

"It could have been a lot worse, though, if I was facing 18 feet and I hadn't made the team," he said. "Getting the record is great but making the Olympic team is greater."

One who grabbed a berth in a second event was 1972 Games marathon gold medalist Frank Shorter. He won the 10,000 by sprinting the last 300 meters after having taken the marathon here in Eugene four weeks ago. Craig Virgin was second in the 10,000 while Garry Bjorklund passed Bill Rodgers 10 meters from the wire to take third. Rodgers qualified previously in the marathon.

Shorter's time in the 10,000 was 27:55.45 while Virgin did 27:59.43 and Bjorklund 28:03.74. That means America will be sending its second, third and fourth fastest men ever in the event to the Olympics. The late Steve Prefontaine's 27:43.6 stands as the American record.

Shorter also plans to try and win an Olympic berth in the 5,000 on Sunday.

"I don't think running in both the 10,000 and the marathon is going to hurt me," said the 28-year-old attorney. "I'm going to run very hard in the 5,000 on Sunday and see what it feels like. If I feel good, it will be a good sign."

There were two other impressive performances Tuesday. The first was by 28-year-old gospel singer Madeline Manning Jackson, who became the first American woman to break two minutes in the 800 meters, and the other was by June Frederick, who won the pentathlon with 4,622 points, the fourth highest total ever by an American.

Manning, who won a gold medal at Mexico City in 1968 and did not place at Munich, four years ago, clocked 1:59.81 and then fell into her coach's (Alex Ferenczy) arms. Obviously, she was emotionally spent. Before the race she led the contestants in prayer. Jackson is an active member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. "I think praying relaxed us all," she said. "All we asked was that we do our best. That way we were all winners."

Cyndy Poor finished second and Kathy Weston, the Pan-Am Games champ, was third. They made the Olympic team along with Manning.

Gale Fitzgerald finished behind Frederick and Marilyn King was third. The three pentathletes were so overcome with winning places on the Olympic team that they paraded several times around the track, sharing their joy with the crowd.

Manning won her third Olympic berth while Fitzgerald and Frederick will be going for the second time. Of the others who clinched places Tuesday, it will be a second Olympics for Shorter. All the others won places for the first time, as did Millard Hampton, who won the 200 meter dash in 20.10, and Dwayne Evans and Mark Lutz, who finished in his wake. Evans, in fact, is only 17 and a high school student. The last time a high school athlete made the track team was in 1968 when Reynaldo Brown won a spot in the high jump.

Today is a welcome break with full programs scheduled for Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. By then the complete men's and women's teams will be picked.

Marge Burris Tops Field At Wiltwyck NEWGA

KINGSTON — Marge Burris, a nine handicapper from the Mohawk Country Club, carded an 85 Tuesday to top the Class A shooters in the Northeastern Women's Golf Association's annual visit to the Wiltwyck Golf Club.

Burris has matched par at Wiltwyck in the past, but with the Class A field reduced to 21 players because of a conflicting tournament, her steady, 43-42 was enough for a threeshot win over Charlotte Kolln and Marilyn Motzkin of Wiltwyck and Gertrude Hallenbeck of Catskill.

Kolln fired the best nine of the day, a 40 on the back side; Hallenbeck showed 45-43. Though they finished in the tie, the pair played different games on the par four ninth. Kolln beat her way through the trees to spoil her chance at low gross with a nine. Hallenbeck hit a brace of three-irons from the fairway, the second one finding the cup for a birdie three.

Gross winners in Class B were Nancy Edwards of the host club, who shot 89, and Peg Taylor of Edison, who returned 93.

Kolln topped the list of Class A net prizewinners, her 16 producing a 72 and a two shot margin over Hallenbeck's score.

Alone in third place was Columbia's Sophie Traver with 92-17—75 and tied for fourth were Mary Treat of Wiltwyck and Jane Kausel of Albany, both with 94-17—77.

Catherine Whitehead of Mohawk led the Class B net prize list with 94-24—70. Mohawk also scored second and third in the division as Ruth Gordon showed 95-24—71, and Sally Murray had 94-21—73.

Also in on the payoff at net 74 were Edith Dewitt and Boots Overbagh of Wiltwyck, Judy Husten of Colonie and Barbara Mayersohn of Mohawk.

Showers softened the course and temporarily halted play, but the field of 57 still averaged under four hours for the round.

Chris Gets Down to Business

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Top-seeded Chris Evert quickly dispatched American Linda Thomas in straight sets before getting down to business Tuesday at the $280,000 Wimbledon tennis championships.

After beating Thomas, Evert started collecting signatures on a petition to have the women players receive the same slice of Wimbledon's monetary pie as the men. Evert, the even money betting favorite, will present the petition to the management committee Friday. Currently, the men's champion receives $22,125 to $17,700 for the women's winner.

Arthur Ashe, the men's top seed and defending champion, ran into trouble for the second straight day with an unheralded opponent. Ashe was taken to four sets by Allan Stone, who is ranked only ninth in his native Australia, before winning, 7-5, 8-9, 9-7, 7-5.

With Ashe way off form, third-seeded Ilie Nastase replaced him as second betting favorite at 8-1. The volatile Romanian met Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia and, since it was the fifth time they had played each other in five weeks, they saw no reason to change the formula—an easy victory for Nastase.

Fifth-seeded Adriano Panatta, the French and Italian Open champion, said after his five-set victory over Australia's Dale Collings: "I shouldn't have been seeded so low. Eight, nine or ten is a better place for me."

Sweden's fifth-seeded Bjorn Borg, the blonde darling of thousands of schoolgirls living in a country hideout to avoid their attentions, buried Marty Riessen, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

The second seed and betting favorite, Jimmy Connors, won a straight set victory over Stephen Warboys of Britain.

Jim Delaney upset Jurgen Fassbender, who learned just before going on court his wife had given birth to a baby.

Britain's number one, Buster Mottram, was forced to abandon his match with Hans-Jurgen Pohmann of Germany after becoming sick on court and gave this reason for trying to play with what was said to be laryngitis: "I didn't want to quit three years in a row." In 1975 he had to stop because of tennis elbow, in 1974 with tonsillitis.

John Newcombe and Tony Roche, unseeded although they have won the doubles here five times, were beaten by the top-seeded doubles team of Brian Gottfried and Raul Ramirez.

SIDELINES

Steve Kane

A second side of the story concerning the reopening of the Onteora race track in Olivebridge came to me recently. It's actually the same side as the one Enno VanDam is on, but Edward Carroll did cast the situation in quite a different light.

I spoke with VanDam last week, and his remarks were set forth in this space. He said he owns the Onteora race track, which he does, and he said he was having difficulty securing the approval necessary to get it back into operation. That is also true.

What Van Dam did not say is that he is in the process of selling his Olivebridge property—that "Suokan Raceway, Inc." is not only the proposed new name of the track but also the name of the corporation which intends to buy the property from him.

Carroll, an attorney, and his partners plan to close the sale, "as soon as we know we can race there."

Carroll called primarily because he was disturbed by the tone of the interview with VanDam. "No one is trying to push anything down the Town of Olive's throat," he said, adding he had made numerous trips to Olivebridge to attempt to work out the details of the reopening to the satisfaction of the local residents. "We still have to come to an understanding with the town," he said, "but we have gone over everything with the Planning Board."

Furthermore, Carroll feels that the implication that a state of war exists between VanDam and the town is grossly exaggerated.

He said, "I think 90 percent of the people there are for the reopening of the track. It's going to create 40 jobs, and we're going to put it back on the tax rolls. And ultimately it will be used for other things."

The main complaints from the residents, according to Carroll, concern the policing of the area and the operation of the track. The rest of the protests emanate from a small, but strong minority.

"We are going to use it as a racetrack once a week for the racing season—seven months," Carroll said. "The rest of the time the residents will use it as a ballfield, for motorcycles and snowmobiles. It will be a recreational facility."

And Shokan Raceway, Inc. intends to run it. "Mr. VanDam will be the mortgagee. We'll run it, and we'll use his expertise to help us," said Carroll.

Carroll pointed to the results of some petitions to support his case. "Most people signed the pro-track petitions, he said. "There were only 17 people who signed against it."

The public hearing on the matter is still set for July 1.

The Allgerville Fire Company has a team in the Kingston Senior Babe Ruth League. It has a left fielder named Kevin Costello and another left fielder named Jim Abbot. What does Costello say when he wants to come out of the game?

Mike Perry showed up for the second round of the Herdegen at Rondout Sunday to watch the action and to do a little lobbying with the tournament committee to get next year's qualifier at Huguenot Manor. He made this remark while he was there:

"I'd like to see them get away from Wiltwyck and Twaalfskull for the Amateur one year. Use four different courses, like Shawangunk, Sawyercrest, Woodstock and Huguenot, just for a change."

Bets are the Herdegen doesn't buy it.

Charlotte Kolin dredged up an old line in explaining how she accumulated a nine on Wiltwyck's ninth hole in a tournament Tuesday.

"I hit it into the trees, and then I tried to go for the green and hit another tree. I hit three trees before I chipped it out on the fairway."

Then what happened, Charlotte?

"I missed a putt for an eight."

Yanks, Con Ed Reach Accord

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees reached agreement with Con Edison Tuesday to continue on an interim basis a free ticket program for disadvantaged youths.

Citing alleged rowdy behavior by the youngsters, the Yankees had threatened to suspend the nine-year program, but club owner George Steinbrenner said, "We've managed to work out an amicable arrangement."

He said the program would continue at least through July 6, saying, "We're going to be able to tell very quickly whether it will work."

Steinbrenner and Con Ed executives said more security personnel would be added to supervise the youngsters with the added costs to be shared by the ballclub and the utility.

"It was an accumulation of incidents which brought this about," Steinbrenner said, "but the program is important for the good kids and the good kids outnumber the others."

Russell W. Holt, Con Ed's director of corporate communications, charged Monday that the decision to terminate the program was prompted by the Yankees' success this year in the field and at the gate.

"It is strange that essentially the same crowd conduct was acceptable when the Yankees were playing at the old stadium and at Shea Stadium," Holt said in a telegram to Yankees' President Gabe Paul.

Kingston Legion Defeats Delmar, 5 to 2

KINGSTON — Kingston Tuesday night at Dietz Stadium and while they put goose eggs on the board the rest of the way, Legion swimmers came from behind and posted a 5-2 victory over Delmar.

A three-run third inning erased a two-run Delmar first and carried Kingston past the upstarters.

A two-base error on Marco Tiano's drive to right started the winning rally. Joe Augustine followed with an RBI single. Later in the frame, 500 hitting John Grogan drove in Augustine with a hit and Rich Bell singled in Augustine.

Kingston added a run in the fourth when a wild pitch enabled Val Galm to score from third. In the sixth, Jay Foust reached second on an error and scored on a Bob Schlanger single.

Augustine yielded two runs (one earned) and two hits in the first. After that, he, Mike Kevin Jordan and Schlanger shut the door, keeping Delmar hitless. Delmar did threaten due to walks and errors, but the late inning work of Jordan and Schlanger kept the visitors at bay.

Kingston's scheduled game at Saugerties Thursday has been postponed. Its next action will be announced.

Fye Outpaces Bevier At Onteora Club Event

OLIVEBRIDGE — A strong finishing kick pulled Clintondale's Mike Fye past Kingston's Charlie Bevier in a 4.2 mile run at the Ashokan Reservoir in an Onteora Runners Club competition.

Fye posted 22:53 for the distance, four seconds faster than Bevier. Craig Hubbell took third with a 23:03 clocking, and Barry Hopkins was fourth in 23:30.

The rest of the top ten finishers included Chip Nippert, Armand Benicase, Ed Strohsahl, John Black, Craig Miller and Bill Weed.

Among the day's other winners was six-year-old Drew Hopkins who was just 17 seconds off his estimate in a one-mile joggers race. He also shared the family team honors with Barry Hopkins as the pair's combined differential was 35 seconds.

Craig and Roger Smith placed second, and Mel and Bernie Stahl were third with combined differences of 40 and 52 respectively.

In the 4.2 mile team event, Eileen Casey, Betty Ann Jerkowski and Martha Constantinou were winners in the women's division. Chandler Leads Diving Field

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Pan American gold medalist Jennifer Chandler of Lincoln, Ala. leads a field of eight women into the finals of the three-meter women's Olympic diving trials here tonight.

Miss Chandler, who hopes to win a berth on the Olympic team by finishing in the top three tonight, ran up 439.35 points in preliminary three-meter competition Tuesday to lead 20 entrants from across the country.

Thirteen divers, including pre-meet favorite Christine Look of Fort Worth, Tex., were eliminated.

"Making the finals is all there is," Miss Chandler said happily. "And now, making the top three is all that's left."

Others who gained the finals in the three-meter event are 1975 indoor champion Carrie Irish of New Canaan, Conn., 414.18 points, Barbara Neuman, Pittsburgh, 410.55, Julie Capps, St. Louis, 401.04, Cynthia Potter McIngvale, Dallas, 397.80, Peggy Anderson, Dubuque, Iowa, 396.27, Janet Ely, Dallas, 390.45, and Carol Lindner, Cincinnati, 387.15.

Miss Look, who logged a disappointing 367.11 points, still has a shot at the 10-meter platform diving event, which begins Thursday.

"I missed two of my compulsory dives and had to press so hard on the rest to try to catch up that I lost control of my program," she said.

Strange Debuts In Western Open

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Curtis Strange, a former National Collegiate and Western Amateur champion, makes his pro golf debut in the Western Open this week.

"I'm excited," the 21-year-old Strange said. "But I'm playing really well, I think the way you have to play to win on the pro tour. This might be the toughest golf course I've ever played, but it's fair. If you play well, you'll score well. If you hit a bad shot, you're penalized for it."

"But I feel I can play this course, and I'd rather play a tough course where a par score means something. I think I was around par on my practice rounds."

If Strange, who went to Wake Forest, can match par during the $200,000 tournament, which ends Sunday with $40,000 to the winner, he could wind up with a good sized paycheck. In the two years the tournament has been played at Butler, only one player has bettered par — Hale Irwin, one under in winning a year ago — and one has matched it — Bobby Cole, finishing second in 1975.

"I've done everything in college and amateur golf," Strange said, "and now I've got to play with the pros where

I can improve faster. I know I can improve my game and, on the pro tour, you have to improve or get out."

Strange, who has not yet passed the PGA players' school to get a playing pro card, got into the Western on a sponsor's invitation and, after this week, he plans to head for Europe to play in the British, Swiss and Scandinavian Opens. Then he will return and compete in the BC Open and the World Open, in which he also has sponsor's exemption.

"All I want to do is play a lot of golf until the PGA school," Strange said. "After the World, I might play on the mini tour, or go to Australia, because the PGA school isn't until December."

Pan Am Vehicles Bombed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two Pan American World Airways vehicles were firebombed early today at the Pan Am cargo center in Kennedy Airport, Port Authority police reported.

No injuries were reported.

A PA police spokesman said incendiary devices heavily damaged a Pan Am pickup truck and station wagon in a parking lot by Cargo Building 87. The first device went off at 4:56 a.m. and the second followed 15 minutes later.

About 6:30 a.m., a man called United Press International and other news media and said the firebombing was done by members of the Dov Gruner Strike Unit of the Jewish Armed Resistance, an offshoot of the Jewish Defense League.

"Pan Am serves as the cargo agent for the Soviet Aeroflot Airlines," the caller said. "We warn all decent Americans to stay away from Soviet buildings and to stop engaging in trade with Soviet agencies. Bridges of detente shall not be built over the bodies of Marina Tiemkin and Dr. Mikhail Shtern (two Soviet Jews who have been refused permission to emigrate)."

He added, "Never again" — a favorite slogan of the JDL — and hung up.

Inmate Walks Away As 'Girl'

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — Visiting privileges for American prisoners will be tightened up at the La Mesa federal penitentiary because a U.S. Navy petty officer held on marijuana charges escaped disguised as a woman.

Julian Boddie III walked out of the prison Sunday and fled across the nearby border to California.

His sister told guards she was a girlfriend and gave them $30 to allow a "conjugal visit," a common practice in Mexican prisons.

The sister and a friend, an airline stewardess, smuggled in women's clothes and makeup. With the aid of a padded brassier and girdle, they disguised Boddie as a woman.

Warden Jesus Medina said Monday Mexico will demand that Boddie be returned and "regulations will tighten up for American prisoners. Only parents or legal wives will be allowed to visit."

Rock's Sense of Humor Still Evident

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — It's nice to see that former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller hasn't let the vice presidency strip him of his sense of humor. Surely, a sense of the absurd is the only explanation for some of Rockefeller's remarks at the Republican State Committee meeting last week. He called what was by all accounts the dullest meeting since Brigitte Bardot met Ann-Margret, "a wonderful example of the strength and leadership of the Republican Party in New York State."

'Lots of Gags' (UPI)

Then, in what approached Henny Youngman for topping each one liner with another, he said the near unanimous selection of Sen. James Buckley as the party's senatorial candidate "shows the tremendous strength and perception of this party in New York State."

With Buckley on the right and Sen. Jacob Javits on the left, the vice president indicated that really meant, "We've got everybody right between them in the party. The strength of this party is that we have this broad spectrum."

With gags like that, "Gilligan's Island" would still be a top-rated television show. The former governor, and anybody else who has ever even slightly observed politics, knows it just doesn't work that way. If it did, everyone to the right of center would have flocked to Sen. Barry Goldwater in 1964. That they didn't — in huge numbers — is a matter of historical fact. By the same token, Sen. George McGovern should have attracted everyone left of center in 1972. That he didn't — in equally huge numbers — is also history.

No indeed, hard left and hard right attract hard left and hard right, leaving an awful lot of people in the center and on both sides with nowhere to go — especially on Election Day. And that's what the Democrats are hoping for this year in New York State, although they appear to be doing their best to kick their opportunities away.

During their meeting last week, the Democrats managed to place four candidates on the ballot for their senatorial primary election this September. Somehow, despite the fact that virtually every Democrat who expressed even a passing interest in running for the Senate ended up on the ballot, the meeting was dubbed "boss-controlled," "managed," "back room politics" and "shameful."

If that meeting was boss-controlled it can only be suggested that the Democrats ought to look for some new bosses. Erie County's Joseph Crangle, coming off a bad trip from Sen. Hubert Humphrey's presidential pipe dream, managed to look menacing but ineffective — a real trick when you think about it.

The delegates coddled New York City Council President Paul O'Dwyer by giving him 85 per cent of their votes on the third ballot — thus making him the party's designated candidate and virtually guaranteeing that's the last thing anybody will ever hear about O'Dwyer.

Which probably isn't a bad idea, considering that the man's main claim to fame is an Irish brogue; a history of not complaining too much when being severely mauled by Javits, and being president of what has to be one of the world's worst legislative bodies.

Crangle, an ardent supporter of Daniel Moynihan — which might give Moynihan some pause for thought — tried to play king and suggested that instead of actually taking the third ballot, the committee merely be allowed to cast 51 per cent of its votes for O'Dwyer.

Rising in high dudgeon, O'Dwyer snapped "I will not take a gift from Mr. Crangle." So the delegates gloomily went through the charade of a third ballot, making sure that they switched enough votes to allow O'Dwyer his last hurrah.

In the meantime, Rep. Bella Abzug and former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark also got on the ballot, guaranteeing they'll slice each other to bits before September's primary voting. And if last week's performances were any example, the voters will either be weak from laughter or in a coma from boredom by August.

Reckless Drivers ...The '76 Version

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Troy Austin stood in the middle of Main St. awaiting the gun. Fifty feet away his horse reared and screamed.

The gun went off, Austin ran for the horse, picked up the mail pouch and the Pony Express rode again....

A similar scene unfolded simultaneously in Sacramento, Calif., and the opposing teams of horsemen rode off on a Bicentennial challenge race matching the hell-bent-for-leather rides of 1830-61 — days when the reckless riders of the Pony Express were the newest and fastest development in mail service.

The race started as a challenge by Utah Gov. Cal Rampton to California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. The starting guns in Salt Lake City and Sacramento were fired simultaneously on the signal of an official starter in Sacramento.

The first 10 of 79 riders from the California State Horseman's Association took off from Salt Lake City racing against a team of 39 riders from Utah's Weber County Sheriff's Mounted Posse headed in the opposite direction.

The riders will recreate the original 756-mile Pony Express route through Utah and Nevada to Sacramento. They carry yellow pouches with 500 pieces of commemorative mail observing the Bicentennial.

In Salt Lake City, police roped off a block on Main St. and the California riders saddled their mounts in front of the Tribune Building — a stop on the original express route.

Square dancers do-si-doed. Riders tugged at their bright red bandannas and adjusted the heavy leather mail pouches.

Shades Of The Old West

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI) — Cutting off a wagon train didn't get the Indians what they wanted, so a representative of the Stillaguamish tribe announced plans to raid the Pony Express.

One year ago Frank Allen and other representatives of the Stillaguamish tribe cut off the Bicentennial Wagon Train on its trip from Blaine, Wash., to Valley Forge, Pa., at Island Crossing in Northern Snohomish County.

As a result, representatives of the Interior Department flew up from Portland to negotiate with the Indians, the wagon train got far more publicity than even its sponsors had hoped for and Indians were all but invited to attack the wagon train again.

But the Indians' effort did get accomplish its main goal: official recognition from the Interior Department.

Austin's horse apparently was not anxious to get on the road. The rider whipped the horse's head around and, in the finest Pony Express tradition, scattered onlookers and newsmen as he mounted his steed sideways on a gallop out of town.

Betty Phillips of Fresno, one of 25 women on the California team, was anxious to get on the trail, which includes hundreds of miles of raw desert in western Utah and Nevada. "I've lived in the desert. I'm not afraid of riding through it."

Both teams will be on the road 24 hours.

The original Pony Express lasted only 18 months on its 1,838-mile route between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento. It was replaced by the telegraph. The express attracted such riders as Buffalo Bill Cody, who was its youngest member at age 15.

Rolling Stone

By Paul Gambaccini

LONDON — Patti Smith prompts some strong opinions here. The New Musical Express drooled that "Horses," her debut Arista album, was "better than the first Beatles and Stones albums, better than Dylan's album." Melody Maker, in turn, snorted: "There's no way that the completely contrived and affected 'amateurism' of 'Horses' constitutes good rock and roll."

So it was with fascination that the press watched the every move of New York's poetess-terrible-raunch-rocker during her first visit here — as part of a brief European tour.

When Patti arrived at the BBC to tape "The Old Grey Whistle Test" segment, she immediately made her presence felt. "Can you pull your cameras away and fade us out?" she asked during rehearsal. "Do we have to have an ending?" First appalled at the notion of "fading" someone out on live TV, studio hands finally figured a way to do it by gradually moving the camera to the show's host, Bob Harris. Then as Jesse Winchester rehearsed his set, Patti and company left for the tea bar, in so doing they walked behind the backdrop of the nine o'clock news, sending a studio man ager into a nervous fit.

In the bar, Patti patted her checked jacket ("My tribute to Keith Richards," the Rolling Stones' lead guitarist who Smith halfway resembles) and discussed the case of Jeremy Thorpe, the Liberal Party leader forced to resign after allegations of a homosexual affair. Pacing the bar like Groucho Marx, Patti decided she would work Thorpe into her act.

Sure enough, as Smith launched into her poem, "Horses," in front of the cameras, there was an ad-libbed mention of the "jobless Mr Thorpe" after which she and her four-piece band moved into versions of two rock oldies, "Land of a Thousand Dances" and "Hey Joe." During the latter (a salute to Jimi Hendrix), Smith knelt on the floor during a frantic guitar solo and engaged her lean lead guitarist, Lenny Kaye, in a bout of duelling guitars.

Rushing back to the monitors to watch the rest of the show, Smith was treated to film footage of Hendrix performing his version of "Hey Joe." "Let's stop playing this rubbish," he sneered halfway through, roaring into "Sunshine of Your Love." Sighed Patti, "For a moment I thought he was flying with us."

Five days later — after shows in Copenhagen, Brussels, Amsterdam and Paris — Patti was back in town for her two-day stand at the Round house where the Rolling Stones had once played. Of stage, she continued to be her individualistic self, standing up broadcast interviewers one afternoon to go shopping ("I'm having my period. That's the difference between Bill Wyman and me. Bill doesn't have these problems.") Onstage, mixing raw rock with her spontaneous off the wall musings, she kept even her detractors interested enough to return to the showroom after a steady drink at the bar.

Those musings: "You know how some people say, 'It's a dog?' 'she asked the opening night audience. 'Like that means it's terrible.' That isn't fair to dogs. Did you realize that dog spelled backwards is good?" And "People talk about Jehovah's Witnesses gaining thousands of people since 1910. Well, rock and roll is all over the world. In Japan they listen to rock and roll! It's not like art has its own national identity anymore. It's like before the Tower of Babel. You don't have to listen to the Ten Commandments just feel the power of rock and roll!"

"She's tremendous," a Cambridge student gaped in reverence at one point during the high-energy set. "This is absolute bull!" sneaked a leather-jacketed youth, fleeing to the bar. Other spoke by giving her standing ovations.

For the most part the written reviews were just as obsessed as the album revues. Melody Maker printed a parody of a review, as if to take the woman seriously would be to admit the existence of a rock and roll cancer. The critic for The Times wrote: "Smith is a Modigliani tomboy street-urchin with her head in a poetic landscape, her motions out of Mick Jagger, her sensibilities running from her past as a factory worker toward tomorrow's dreams in the tormented images from Rimbaud to Bob Dylan."

The reviewer for the Evening Standard was more succinct: "She is the only girl singer I have ever seen spit on stage."

Appraisal: None One Is Winner

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — An authoritarian boss makes his workers fail while a permissive boss makes himself fail — and neither type makes employees happy, according to a study funded by the Air Force.

The six-year study, conducted by the Wichita State University Center for Human Appraisal with a $100,000-per-year Air Force grant, found permissive bosses produce rebellious workers and authoritarian bosses produce ingratiating, "yes, sir" workers.

"The authoritarian assigns obligations but doesn't give his workers the power to do the job right. He programs the subordinate for failure, which allows him to take more power from him. This justifies him in being more abusive," said Art Sweney, director and founder of the center.

"The permissive boss gives power away, then doesn't have control of his job anymore. The permissive leader programs himself for failure. The permissive thinks he can buy love by giving power. He's usually wrong, because the rebel is not a loving person."

Sweney's team of researchers set out to answer the question: How does the relationship between employees and superiors affect employees' job satisfaction? They used several tests, including one comparing how an employee wants to behave with how he thinks he's supposed to behave.

The researchers studied both military and private industry and found the military was more authoritarian than business.

They found that for men, the most important factor in liking a job was the job itself and whether it gave them a feeling of challenge and accomplishment. The second most important factor was how they related to the boss.

"But we found that women in industry viewed how they got along with the boss as more important than the job itself," Sweney said.

The ideal relationship between employers and employees, Sweney said, is one in which the boss is egalitarian — listening to workers' complaints and acting on them without being permissive — and a subordinate who is both cooperative and critical.

Britain Regains U.S. Land

OCRAOKE, N.C. (UPI) — A little cemetery in North Carolina where the bodies of four British seamen were buried during World War 2 soon will become their native soil.

The state has purchased the cemetery near the small island village of Ocracoke on the Outer Banks and arrangements have been made to lease the site to Great Britain for $1 a year.

On the white picket fence surrounding the plot is a plaque that reads:

"If I should die, think only this of me:

"That there's some corner of a foreign field

"That is forever England."

A. L. Henderson, the state property and control officer who worked out most of the lease arrangements, said "Those men were actually here protecting the coast of North Carolina and the nation and we consider it a gesture of good will."

The four men were members of crew of HMS Bedfordshire, torpedoed by a German submarine off the North Carolina coast. All hands aboard were killed.

Four bodies washed ashore May 14, 1942, three days after the Bedfordshire sank 40 miles southeast of Cape Lookout. Two of the bodies were those of Lt. Tom Cunningham and Stanley Craig, a telegrapher. The other two remain unidentified.

Henderson sent the paperwork on the lease to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission June 3. Officials are hoping to transfer control of the land during a formal ceremony later this year.

The state purchased the property for $1,050 from three landowners and the lease will run "in perpetuity."

Henderson said the National Park Service has agreed to provide material to continue maintenance. The Coast Guard will continue to provide the manpower.

For years the Coast Guard has raised the Union Jack over the tiny cemetery to honor the sailors.

Gossip Beat

By Robin Adams Sloan
Q: What's with Faye Dunaway and her rock musician husband Peter Wolf? There were lots of pictures of Faye at the Cannes Film Festival but he wasn't in any of them. - O.C., Naples, Fla.
A: He wasn't in the photographs because he wasn't at Cannes. Looks to us as though the lady and her husband are traveling in different directions.
Q: How did Lee Remick do in her London production of "Bus Stop"? - C.J., Lexington, Ky.

A: She was a smash as usual. But co-star Keir Dullea was not having such a good time because Lee's name covered most of the theater billboards and Dullea's was hardly visible. With Miss Remick's support he spoke to the management but they wouldn't budge. So Keir refused to go on and his understudy took the part. Dullea resumed the role for the next performance with the billboards unchanged. The show must go on, we guess, even if your name is in small type.

Q: How do Julie Andrews and her husband get along? - K.L., Baltimore, Md.

A: It seems like a real story-book marriage. Even after going together for four years and being wed for seven more, Julie and movie director Blake Edwards are forever smooching in public, holding hands on the street and generally behaving like teenagers. At the same time, Julie is trying hard to shed that innocent image that had some mag saying she was so sweet she could transmit tooth decay at 50 paces. So Julie dutifully talks about how she smoked pot, loves X-rated movies and does on nude magazines. But she still comes across as sweet as ever. However, when the public sees her in her latest film where she cavorts in bed with Omar Sharif (under the direction of her husband) the old image may finally be broken for good. We hope not.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: How come those life-sized inflatable dolls are selling like hotcakes in Los Angeles? Motorists in L.A. are buying them in an effort to dodge a new freeway regulation which sets aside certain lanes for cars carrying at least two passengers. The scheme is another effort to encourage car pools. Foxy drivers are propping up the dolls as pseudo passengers. Whizzing by at 60 who can tell the difference?

TRAFALGAR SQUARE GARDEN? Irving Feit, 66, head of New York's Madison Square Garden, has been saying that he wants to put up a similar sports complex in London. The British press, of course, just hates the idea of some foreigner coming in and messing up their architecture. (They still haven't gotten over the Hilton Hotel.) The arguments sound a lot like the Concorde controversy in reverse, with just as much misinformation tossed around as in the SST debate. One English paper, for instance, reports that Madison Square Garden is so huge that it houses a baseball diamond and football field. It's nowhere near that big.

Q: Wouldn't you think Paul McCartney would drop his wife from the Wings group in view of the terrible reviews she keeps getting? - U.B., Knoxville, Tenn.

A: Those slings and arrows seem to have the opposite effect on Paul, making him even more determined to keep Linda in the show. No, it isn't obstinacy. McCartney feels a great need to repay his wife for the warm, comfortable homelife she has provided. What other rock star would write such an ode to domesticity like "Cook of the House" just for his wife to sing? Linda is up on that stage for as long as she wants to be.

Q: Have you heard anything about a revival of the old amateur hour show for television? - J.M.C., San Bernardino, Calif.

A: They're working on the pilot for a new version right now. There has been a little trouble because the producers were using the traditional hook to haul the no-talent contestants off stage when they failed. A few of the judges decided this was cruel and inhuman punishment and withdrew from the pilot show.

Personal Report:

Terror on the Subway

By Frank T. Csongos

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was the longest subway ride of my life.

It started peacefully. Then terror struck the subway, the kind usually reserved for late night movies on television. But it was all real. And happening to me. And to others.

A gang of teen-agers, following a disturbance at a rock concert, took over several cars on a Manhattan-bound Flushing line train. About a dozen of them started to harass passengers, then proceeded to rob them and beat up those who resisted.

There was not a single policeman in sight. I saw an elderly man wrestled to the ground, his face bleeding, his jacket torn. "Give me your wallet and your watch, you ...," one of them shouted at him.

The man cried for help. Not a single passenger moved. I started to get up. Someone knocked me down.

The train suddenly stopped in a tunnel between two stations. It stayed there about 15 minutes. The lights went out. It was dead dark.

"Light up this joint, man," one youth said to another. They lit up.

The lights came on. The elderly man tried to get up. He couldn't.

"My watch is gone," he said. "My wallet. My alien registration card."

I felt a shove. I staggered away. Three young guys ran into the subway car from the adjoining one.

"I just ripped these watches off," one boasted. "Look at this digital. It don't even work."

Someone grabbed me.

"Give me your watch," he shouted at me. I didn't answer. I didn't dare to look up. I only saw a brown jacket with leather trimming.

He grabbed my watch band, starting to pull it. I shoved him away. Another punched me in the face.

I looked around. The other passengers, mostly teen-age girls, appeared terrified.

Another punch.

Instinctively, I yelled out. As hard as I could.

"Help!"

None came.

The door suddenly swung open. It was a dark, deserted subway station.

I ran out.

The train sped away.

I wasn't followed.

It was nearly midnight. I caught the next subway. It came in a few minutes and was nearly empty.

I reached Grand Central station. Then it began to sink in what really happened.

I began to run. I didn't stop running until I reached the office.

Then I remembered a present a fellow UPI staffer gave me just before I was transferred to New York from Pittsburgh. He did it partly in jest because of what we had heard about New York.

Dixie Shipbuilder Returns to The Art and Science Formula

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (UPI) — Up the Pascagoula River from the gigantic shipyards that build huge tankers and fast destroyers, Donn Kaylor is building boats according to principles laid down a hundred years ago when shipbuilding "was an art and a science."

Kaylor, 26, has no use for the modern methods or materials of shipbuilding and he has particular scorn for fiberglass, by far the predominant material used in the construction of boats less than 50 feet in length.

"I only use natural materials," Kaylor said. "I make my own goo (wood sealer and marine glue) and I usually make a mess."

"But I know how the wood and the goo is going to behave and I know that when I guarantee one of my boats to last 20 years, it'll last at least that long and it won't be priced out of sight."

"You can bang it up against piers and pilings and when it finally falls apart you haven't lost that much," he said.

Kaylor has chosen to build boats along lines that have been proven at sea for more than a century.

"When men first began to build ships it was an art and a mystery," he said. "Then it became an art and a science as they learned why materials and shapes acted the way they did. Now it's a science and a mystery why they use chemicals and materials without being able to predict how well they'll work."

The name on the door — Pascagoula Yacht Specialties — belies the nature of Kaylor's "shipyard." Nestled among junkyards and rickety shrimp boat docks at the foot of an obscure little street, it's nothing more than an old machine shop with a tin roof and open rafters. The windows are yellow with age and cobwebs billow out of the unused corners of the old building.

The ancient work benches are littered with marine catalogues, blueprints of old sailing vessels and the hand tools Kaylor uses to cut and shape wood.

"If I settled down and behaved like a businessman, I could make a go at some money," Kaylor said. "But if behaving like a businessman means I can't do what I want to do or think I need to do, then I don't want it."

An eight-foot wooden sailing dinghy he's currently working on — a one-day job for a modern boat builder using fiberglass hulls and aluminum masts — has been under construction now for almost six months. When it's complete the owner will pay only $600, a bargain considering the detailed and careful work that has gone into it.

Kaylor has several other small sailing boats on order and he takes in repair work on other wooden vessels. But the boats he sells are done primarily to finance the construction of his own boat, a 38-foot Sharpie schooner, a sailing vessel used in the late 1800s as a crabbing boat.

After more than a year of labor, interrupted frequently by the smaller money-making projects, the schooner's hull is beginning to take shape. It lies upside down across the middle of the shop and it's hard to believe the boat will one day look like the graceful sailing vessel depicted in the plans. Kaylor, a native of California, grew up near the ocean and became fascinated with boats at an early age. Since then he's moved around the nation's coasts, studying the designs of craft peculiar to each region. He settled in Pascagoula a few years ago after obtaining a job as a shipfitter at Ingalls Shipyard.

He quit that job to devote more time to building his own boats. But when cash reserves are running low Kaylor admits he begins to consider the security of his former job at Ingalls.

"I thought about going back yesterday," he grinned, "but I'm not to that point quite yet."

Hospital System Studied

KINGSTON—Dr. Juarez de Queiroz Campos, superintendent/director of Hospital da Irmandade de Santos in Santos, Brazil visited Benedictine Hospital recently.

Dr. Campos' hospital in Santos, a port and recreation city, has 1000 beds and employs 3000 persons. During vacation periods and weekends the population and the accident rate of the city triple. His hospital has treated as many as 1,500 emergencies in a 24 hour period and performs an average of 3,500 operations per month. As a result, there is a great amount of paper work to be done.

The purpose of Campos' visit was to observe a functioning hospital Data Processing System. It is his hope that a similar system will enable the Santos hospital to operate more accurately and efficiently.

Two Views On Utility Power Line

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A Public Service Commission examiner and the Adirondack Park Agency disagree on whether Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. should be allowed to begin building one of five segments of a proposed 116,000-volt power line through the mountains.

The utility is seeking a certificate of environmental compatibility and public need for 51.6 miles of transmission lines linking various substation in Saratoga and Warren counties.

Examiner Thomas Matias recommended Tuesday that the commission approve a 15-mile segment from the town of Hadley to the Warrensburg substation because there was no controversy over the proposed route for 9.6 miles of that segment.

The Adirondack Park Agency, which is also taking part in the case, reported it could not join in the recommendation, but Matias said, "It is not necessary to have APA's full concurrence" at this time.

The portions of the route for which early certification was recommended are now used as right-of-way for a 34,500 volt line.

Sailing Toward Title

Thirty-one contestants for 1976 Miss California Pageant title took to the waters of Monterey Bay aboard six yachts for an afternoon of sailing. Aboard the 50-foot Xanthippe were Miss Kings County, Susan Bean, 21; Miss San Luis Obispo, Adele Pimentel, 23; Miss Redwood City, Kim Peltz, 19, at the helm; and Miss Concord, Michele Somers, 18. The pageant begins Thursday. (UPI)

Upcoming Economic Summit ...A Lid on the Expansion

NEW YORK (UPI) — When leaders of the major Western industrial powers met last year, they mandated economic expansion to create jobs and spending to battle the worst recession since World War 2. Since that first economic summit, held at Rambouillet, France, the free market nations have pretty much worked themselves out of the recession. Now the main concern is to limit expansion to prevent another boom-bust cycle.

This will be the No. 1 item on the agenda when leaders of the United States, Canada, West Germany, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan meet Sunday and Monday at a resort in Puerto Rico for their second economic summit in less than year.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau of Canada, who was not invited to Rambouillet but will be in Puerto Rico, said Canada hopes the seven nations will agree to maintain "a steady as you go" stance.

Of the nations represented at the summit, the strongest recoveries are under way in the United States, West Germany, Ford's major campaign issue has been the healthy state of the economy, and the Puerto Rico summit gives him an international forum just six weeks before the GOP nominating convention.

The other heads of state — British Prime Minister James Callaghan, German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Italian Premier Aldo Moro and Trudeau — also have serious political problems at home.

Callaghan's labor government has launched a tough program to limit wage increases to reduce Britain's inflation rate, now running at nearly 10 percent.

Viking Transmits Mars Site Films

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Viking 1 spacecraft in its third orbit of Mars sent back pictures of its preferred landing site on the surface in preparation for its planned July 4 touchdown.

George Sands, mission control spokesman at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, said the first of an intended 58 frames were transmitted the nearly 200 million miles to earth late Tuesday and early today, along with 27 measurements of moisture on Mars.

Viking 1, one of twin spacecraft designed to put small nuclear-powered science labs on the Martian surface, snapped pictures of the landing site Tuesday afternoon when it made its closest pass over Mars for a six-minute period.

A little more than three hours later it began sending them back to earth. Scientists today were to begin analyzing the pictures frame by frame.

The pictures, taken from more than 940 miles above the Martian surface, should show features at least the size of a football field.

The first choice for a landing site is in Mars' northern hemisphere, a basin called Chryse that in some past age may have been a drainage area for a river system.

A team of scientists wanted to study the picture to look for any hazards, such as craters, boulder fields or steep slopes — features that would endanger the three-legged lander or tip it over.

Caution is needed because the lander will be on the surface of Mars, for good or ill, 18 minutes before scientists here will know what happened. That's the time it takes for speed-of-light transmission to travel the distance to Earth.

Tuesday, it was found that much more water may exist on the red planet than had been thought, especially in lowland basins such as Chryse.

Scientists say the amount of water, and the fact there is water at all, adds considerably to the possibility of finding bacterial life on Mars.

Viking 2, the sistership with duplicate functions, was 6.3 million miles from Mars and headed for orbit Aug. 7.

Slots Vetoed

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — The Commonwealth legislature has defeated a bill to permit slot machines to operate indefinitely in the casinos of the luxury hotels. The slot machines were installed in October 1974 for a three-year trial period, and the government Tourism Development Co. was seeking permanent authorization for their operation. The company reported at the half-way point in the trial period, the slot machines had earned a $2.2 million profit for the hotels and $3.3 million for the government under the 40-60 split established by law.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JUNE 24

Your birthday today: Little by little you reorganize your life and head for a midyear turning point, bringing increasing prosperity within reach. Spontaneous growth comes via intuition and finding out why things are as they are. Relationships offer more opportunity than you've time for. Today's natives have firm beliefs about the future; may sacrifice personal interests for public causes.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Two phases today: morning's business needs afternoon review and corrections. Shortcuts, modern communication aids save energy but don't compensate for the human touch.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There's more for you later if you put something together for others now. Aside from this, little is produced today. Save your money for better uses ahead.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): After morning complexities, you effectively use your skills and knowledge. The unexpected is the norm: don't try to create special effects, but be ready to use them.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Stay near home base and be ready for a long day. First, sort things out; then, organize profitable activity. Imaginative insights light the way; keep careful notes.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Suggestions rise from all sides. Consider the source, then think for yourself. You come up with new ideas that bring results and attract definite support.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People trip all over each other; discreetly stay out of the uproar. Propose your project; expect competition from some, backing from those who see what you're driving at.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If possible, a late start is an advantage. Rivals make errors; pick up the pieces with your original idea. Wait until evening to sign documents.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): When you're sure of what you want to present, make a strong pitch for endorsement. Rumors fly; stay with what you know from practice.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Conditions are favorable, so don't cause static. Gather confidants for sound planning. Soon it will be your turn to exert leadership.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You take longer now to set up workable programs, but it's worth the effort. Tonight talk over your goals with selected companions, then celebrate.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Self-discipline helps you remain calm through the morning. Discretion pulls you away from others now, but you're motivated to find your way back in good time.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Listen and weigh what's being said all around you, then launch your own sales campaign. Apply for well-earned compensation for services rendered.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

OFFER: (Q.) Help! This guy is really great. We get along swell. I've known him since seventh grade. He is getting an apartment and he has also joined the Navy.

He will be leaving next month and wants me to take care of his place while he's gone. In November, when I will be 17, he wants me to move in.

I really dig him a lot, but I don't know what to do. If I move out of my house to live with him, my folks say they'll disown me. Should I just take care of the apartment and not move in until it's time, or what? — Must Decide in Florida

(A.) Your parents should not disown you no matter what you do. But I agree fully with them that you should not move into a male's apartment at 17.

You shouldn't move in at any age unless you and the male are married. Tell your friend yes, you'll be glad to take care of his apartment, but you don't plan to live with anyone you are not married to.

CAR WISE: (Comment) You had a letter about a girl and her friend whose boy friends are always talking "car talk." I went through the same thing with my brother and father, so I took an auto mechanics course in high school and LOVED it!

I learned so much. I am proud to say I can change tires, and oil, do tuneups, and talk car talk as well as, if not better, than some of the guys.

I also discovered how much I love cars. It's also fun to see the reactions of the guys I meet and go out with. Taking that course opened up a whole new world for me. As a result, my ambition is to be an auto mechanic. — In Tune With Cars in Connecticut

(A.) There is no good reason that a female cannot be just as expert about cars as a male. You have found that out and it has been a great discovery for you. Maybe other female Teen Forum readers will see the advantages of doing what you did.

the field would be in four spades. We really should have been there also. I should have raised my partner to two spades instead of bidding one notrump.

The normal play in spades would be for declarer to ruff a heart and play West for the queen of spades. He would make five if West held that card and four if East held it.

I also noted that if I played West for the spade queen I would wind up making one trick less than the spade declarers and have a poor score.

One thing that I learned about match point play at a very early stage in my bridge career was to study both my contract and possible other contracts.

Thus, when dummy hit the table I saw that at least half Accordingly, I won the heart in dummy, led dummy's jack of spades and let it ride. This enabled me to pick up East's queen of spades, collect 10 tricks and a top score, since the rest of the field made either four spades or just three notrump.

Probers on JFK: Oswald Lone Slayer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators, after a nine-month study of the Warren Commission's probe of President Kennedy's murder, are critical of the roles of the FBI and the CIA in the investigation but they don't dispute its finding that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin.

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., and Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., co-chairmen of a special intelligence subcommittee, are releasing the 110-page report tonight and turning it over to the newly created 15 member Senate Select Committee on Intelligence Activities for further action.

Schweiker has said the study produced "hot, new leads" which could produce new evidence about Kennedy's assassination. But Hart told a newsman Tuesday "there is nothing sensational in the report."

Hart said the probe produced "no serious evidence to dispute the Warren Commission's finding that Oswald was the sole assassin." The report makes no specific recommendations.

The study, informants said, is expected to report:

— Former CIA Director Allen W. Dulles, one of the seven members of the Warren Commission, knew of Kennedy administration assassination attempts against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro but did not so inform the commission.

— FBI Special Agent James P. Hosty in Dallas destroyed a letter Oswald wrote him weeks before Kennedy was slain in November 1963. Hosty withheld this information from the commission, apparently on higher orders, so as not to embarrass the FBI. The letter reportedly told the FBI to stop bothering Oswald's wife, Marina.

— Documents relating to Oswald's presence from August until October of 1963 in New Orleans, where he may have had Cuban contacts, have mysteriously disappeared from FBI files.

— No incontrovertible evidence has been developed to show Oswald acted in conspiracy, or with Cubans, to assassinate Kennedy. Senate revelations that Kennedy sought to encourage a coup against Castro and contemplated assassination schemes against him have fueled speculation Castro was behind Kennedy's murder, and Oswald was his pawn.

Kennedy pursued a double policy towards Cuba in 1963 trying, on the one hand, to remove Castro while, at the same time putting out feelers for improving relations, according to historical materials now available.

A French journalist Jean Daniel carried such a feeler to Castro from Kennedy and met with him on the day Kennedy was killed, Nov. 22, 1963.

Castro was later quoted in an interview with Frank Manikiewicz and Joseph Kirby as saying, "In my opinion this (message brought by Daniel) was a definite gesture on Kennedy's part to try to establish contact and exchange with us."

"But as I was listening to everything he was saying me about his conversation with Kennedy, the news broke over the radio that an attempt had been carried out against Kennedy's life."

"It really seemed such a shame, such a tragic ending to Kennedy's life," Castro said.

Ashokan Included In En Con Bid

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Environmental Conservation Commissioner Peter Berle says he wants the legislature to approve a proposal allowing his department to regulate operation of New York City's 20 major reservoirs in seven upstate counties.

"Passage of this legislation would assure the same water supply to the city as at present," Berle said Tuesday in a memo to lawmakers. "It will also assure that sufficient amounts of unused water are released into the rivers so that no future environmental destruction can occur."

Berle noted the reservoir system covered by the legislation "was developed over a period of more than a century during which very little was known about the ecological needs or values of the streams or rivers where the impoundments were placed."

He said "some progress" had been made over the last two years in negotiations with the city, but major differences existed over year-round flows of sufficient volume, year-round balancing of flows, and release of additional water in times of critical environmental hazard. The reservoirs affected by the proposal are located in Delaware, Sullivan, Greene, Schoharie, Ulster, Westchester and Putnam counties.

Lebanon's Cease-Fire Riddled by New Assault

UPI communications from Beirut have been cut since late Tuesday afternoon. The following story incorporates our latest information from the Lebanese capital.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A fierce tank and artillery assault by Christian rightists on two Palestinian refugee camps made a shambles of Lebanon's latest cease-fire and imperiled today's planned reopening of Beirut airport.

The offensive on the Jisr Alphas and Tal Zaatar camps in southeast Beirut began only hours after a bus convoy of 200 foreigners — including 20 Americans — left Beirut Tuesday for Damascus in a British-sponsored evacuation.

British officials said it could be the last evacuation convoy from this war-ravaged city. Another 1,300 Americans and about 700 Britons chose to take their chances and stayed behind.

The rightists claimed in a radio broadcast they had captured Jisr Alphas and set Tal Zaatar ablaze with a down-pour of shells falling "at the rate of 15 every minute."

A Palestinian Liberation Organization spokesman said

both camps, about four miles northeast of the airport, were encircled by "a force of about 4,000 men and dozens of tanks" but as of Tuesday night, "all their attacks have been beaten back."

The new Christian offensive shattered a Libyan-mediated cease-fire arranged Monday and hampered civil aviation authorities, who had planned to reopen Beirut International Airport to commercial traffic today.

The fighting erupted only hours after Syrian troops, stationed around the airport, withdrew to let a 1,000-man Libyan-Syrian peace-keeping force take over the looted, shelled facility under terms of the new cease-fire.

A Red Cross DC6 carrying food and medical supplies from Larnaca, Cyprus, arrived Tuesday, the first civilian craft to land at the airport since it was seized June 8 by Syrian troops.

Airport authorities said they were technically able to land planes but a tour of the facility showed there was much work to be done. The duty-free shops, most of the warehouses and all the airline offices had been vandalized and the runway was pockmarked with holes from mortar shells.

Tuesday's shelling spread to other areas of Beirut as Lebanese leftists unleashed rockets and mortars on Christian sectors in an apparent effort to relieve pressure on the besieged camps.

Pro-Syrian forces at Khaldé, south of the airport, shelled the Palestinian camps of Chatilla and Sabra, near the route the British-organized evacuation convoy took earlier in the day.

Fighting was also reported between Syrian and leftist forces in the mountains northeast of Beirut. Palestinians said leftist positions at the mountain town of Bhamdoun along the main Damascus-Beirut highway were shelled by Syrian artillery and the leftists returned fire. The joint Palestinian-leftist command said its forces ambushed a Syrian patrol near Aintoura, 19 miles northeast of Beirut, killing a Syrian major and capturing two soldiers.

Dutchess Sheriff Rapped On the Jail Conditions

NEW YORK (UPI) — A federal judge has ruled that Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence Quinlan's long-standing defiance of an order to improve living conditions at the county jail amounts to "willful contempt" of court.

should be closed."

The judge said virtually nothing has been done since Quinlan entered into an agreement to provide acceptable conditions.

"I find," Werker said in a 19-page opinion, "that the sheriff in this case is not only in contempt of the court order but, in respect to the items mentioned, he is willfully in contempt."

Items mentioned on which no improvements have been made include the classification of inmates as minors, convicts and pretrial detainees, the provision of mental health services, improved food, recreation and hygiene; communication privileges; and over-all improvement of the physical plant.

Werker dismissed Quinlan's argument that he cannot obtain the necessary funds from the Dutchess County Legislature. The sheriff, Werker said, made only one application for funds, "and this was in the form of a massive capital improvement program involving some $2 million."

"The sheriff failed to take any action with respect to those items for which no or minimal expenditures were required."

New Laws Say No To Moon in Tarrytown

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — New zoning laws make it impossible for the Rev. Sun Myung Moon to build a live-in school in this Westchester County village or for his Unification Church followers to live here communally.

The zoning changes were adopted Monday night at a board of trustees meeting, during which Mayor Patrick Pilla questioned the church's good faith and accused it of contempt for village laws.

Moon lives in nearby Irvington and his church has spent $10 million to buy more than 350 acres in the Tarrytown area. Pilla quoted Unification Church leaders as saying in unofficial talks with the board that "they planned to build a cultural center or university of some sort."

Under the new laws, "no more than two persons unrelated by blood, adoption or marriage shall reside ... living and/or cooking together as a single housekeeping unit" and "no ... school shall have boarding or dormitory facilities."

Previously, five unrelated persons could live together, provided they applied for permits.
